BARRY MAN GETS PRISON SENTENCE FOR DRUG DEALING

'The extent of your offending means that only an immediate custodial sentence is appropriate.'

by AJ SICLUNA

A DRUG dealer who sold cannabis worth £1,000 a week in the Barry area has been jailed for 16 months at Cardiff Crown Court.

Daniel David (22), was told by Judge Stephen Hopkins QC: "You were on the cusp of being a wholesaler."

David, a car washer, of Holton Road, Barry, admitted possessing cannabis and amphetamine with intent to supply.

Prosecutor Julian Greenwood said police searched David's home, which was then in Dudley Place, Barry. Also present were his partner and a friend, who were in no way connected with drugs.

During the search, officers found tied bags of cannabis worth up to £1,700 and in a freezer in the kitchen, they found three bags of amphetamine, worth up to £1,320.

Four digital scales were discovered in a bedroom on which were traces of amphetamine and cannabis. The officers also found four mobile phones containing texts concerning the supply of controlled drugs.

David was interviewed and was "frank and forthcoming" and admitted supplying drugs.

He told the officers he obtained cannabis from a third party and divided it into one ounce deals. He added that he sold five ounces every other day.

His solicitor, Adam Sharp, said: "I have to concede from the outset that the seizure was not inconsiderable."

David, he said, assisted the police from the outset.

"He realises that the custodial threshold is more than passed, but there is a good reason to draw back from an immediate custodial sentence."

He said David had a partner and a stable lifestyle.

"He accepts that in the past he went off the rails. The impact of custody would be profound."

The court heard he had a previous conviction for burglary.

The judge said it was revealed that David had been selling cannabis for £1,000 a week and he added: "The extent of your offending means that only an immediate custodial sentence is appropriate."

He directed that the drugs and drugs paraphernalia be forfeited.

DANIEL DAVID.

A funeral service represents a family's final farewell to their loved one. Knowing this, we go beyond what is expected to ensure the ceremony is beautiful and memorable. A truly fitting tribute to that special life.

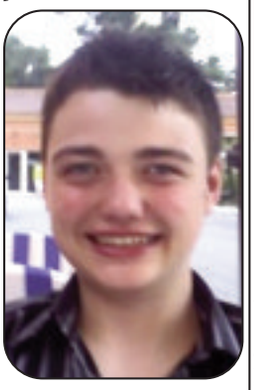
How volunteering opened door to work for Jordan



A young Vale man tells how volunteering with the Glamorgan Voluntary Services led to a job as a teaching assistant.

"I was recommended to contact Glamorgan Voluntary Services (GVS) as I had no work experience. I started as a volunteer through GVS, with Simon Jones of Sports Disability Wales," "I gained experience in various settings; Jenner Park Athletics, Colcot Leisure Centre, Cadoxton Play Scheme and Tŷ Hafan Hospice. These opportunities gave me responsibility and also experience in working with children with special needs.

"Simon Jones was both supportive and appreciative which gave me confidence. You don't even need to be 'sporty' to help out in these activities.

"Apart from the volunteering, I was able to do various courses, e.g. autistic spectrum disorder training, coaching disabled performers certificate and team leader in sports training.

"I would recommend volunteering to any young person as it builds up your CV and work experience. Without this opportunity I may not have gone on to work as a teaching assistant in various special schools in Penarth and Barry,"

'My peaceful hunt protest put no-one in jeopardy'

IN reply to the letter, 'Dismay at dangerous hunt-sab Cowbridge' by Alasdair T Forbes, I was that peaceful protester in Cowbridge on Boxing Day.

At no time did I wave a white sheet (banner) in front of the Glamorgan hunt, the banner was held taut at all times.

I would not have put any horse, rider, crowd, or myself in jeopardy. I held the banner in front of the hunt, then stepped from the centre of the road to the left hand side, to allow them to proceed up through the town.

The banner I used displayed a painting of a fox and a huntsman with the words 'Beauty and The Beast' (which may I point out to readers was spelt correctly and not incorrectly, as one comment suggests).

I did wear a faux fur hat on that Boxing Day. I calmly replied to a lady heckler in the crowd who shouted: "She's wearing a fur hat."

I replied: "It's fake."

A few other ladies joined in, shouting the same comments. There is a saying we are a little like sheep, if one person does a thing usually another will follow, and I find this sometimes to be true and amusing.As for behaviour: I protested peacefully, and this was seen by the crowds in Cowbridge on Boxing Day. However, not everyone behaved in such a manner.

One well-dressed gentleman spat at my feet. I again replied in a calm manner: "That was not a very nice thing to do".

This act was seen by a lady and gentleman standing next to him.

As for being a hunt saboteur, I have, fortunately, never had to protect a fox from someone trying to hurt or kill it; but if I were, my actions would be somewhat different, and then would be worthy of the name 'hunt saboteur'.

Barry.

Working hard on winter flu jabs

I AM writing in relation to the article in The GEM on January 12, concerning Andrew RT Davies AM's comments on ward closures in Cardiff and Vale University Health Board.

We are working hard to make sure that as many staff as possible have the flu vaccination.

We continue to promote the vaccine and are recruiting more Flu Champions to deliver the jab on our wards.

Our efforts have seen uptake increase every year for the past five years, with our current uptake close to our target for the year.

However, we know we need to do more and we are also working alongside other health boards in Wales to share best practice, as we know that the challenges in increasing staff uptake are not unique to Cardiff and the Vale. Increasing our uptake involves a cultural change, and, with staff engagement continuing to improve, we are hopeful that we will hit our uptake goal by the end of this flu season, in line with the Welsh Government's targets.

We currently have three wards at University Hospital Llandough and three wards at University Hospital of Wales affected by flu. All of the wards are open; however, some beds have been temporarily closed to new admissions to prevent further spread of infection.

Visitors are permitted; however, we would advise against it – unless absolutely necessary.

Jamie Mills,
Communications and Engagement Officer, Public Health Wales, Cardiff and Vale Public Health Team, Whitchurch Hospital.

'Do you have old images of the Island?

I AM a local historian currently in the middle of writing a book regarding the history of Barry Island and I am appealing to members of the public who happen to have any old photographs of Barry Island that they would be happy for me to use in my book.

I am particularly interested in photographs of Barry Island before, and at around the time the docks were constructed; although I would also be interested in any photographs regarding the Island's Victorian/Edwardian tourism years.

I would, of course, be more than happy to give full credit for any photos that I would use.

Please contact hiddenglamorgan@outlook.com if you think that you can help.

'Parking no problem at Barry Hospital'

I AM sick to the back teeth of hearing the criticism and problems with the recent parking arrangements at the Barry Hospital.

I visit the Barry Hospital, every four weeks by car. I go to reception, enter my registration number, on the simplest of machines, and guess what? ... No hassle, no fines, no problem!

How easy do the people of Barry need this to be? All you need to do is to select from the easy menu, enter your car registration number, then press 'enter'.

If you have a problem with this easiest of equipment, then seek help from hospital staff!

If you forget to enter your car reg, get it wrong, or don't seek help if in doubt, then that's your problem.

The warning and information signs are there, all over the place.

'Refuse men must replace bins correctly'

IT appears that I have a personal vendetta against the council's 'bin men' – I can assure you I have not!

I appreciate theirs is a most difficult and dirty job, especially at this time of year.

However, it looks as if their whole team are being let down by one or two individuals.

Two weeks ago, during food collection time, a collector came down our estate and would normally put all the food out of the small green bins into a large strong bag.

This, of course, is intelligent thinking; the empty bins can be put back at the gates of the houses.

It is more important on the estate where I live, as there is no loading outside our old age pensioners' bungalows and the bin man has to walk some distance to collect our rubbish.

The man who collected our food bags recently took all our bins last week, emptied them into his lorry, then left our bins at the roadside.

It was only by chance that I saw what had happened and retrieved the bins and put them back at the houses where they belonged.

I rang the refuse office and asked to speak to the person in charge and was told my complaint would be logged. My experience is nothing else will happen.

May I suggest getting rid of the very few who cannot do the job properly, or replace the person in charge, so these complaints are sorted.

Mr W Foran, Barry.

WHO AM I?

Loneliness despair
Doesn't anyone care
Please help me I pray
As I face another day
Isolation and hurt
But I am looked at like dirt
Not many are at ease
With this non-contagious disease
My illness is blind
So I am left behind.
I don't have cancer
So I must be an attention-seeking chancer
Next time you choose to ignore
Please notice me I applaud
A kind word for a person with a broken mind
Is more precious than gold
For my illness is real and I do feel.

Have you guessed who has written this poem? I am someone who cares for and lives with someone with a mental health condition and there is still a lot of single minded ignorance that surrounds the whole aspect of mental illness.

Barry analyst Marc gears up for the Six Nations challenge with under-20s

by GEM REPORTER

AN extended Wales Under 20 squad met recently in preparation for their Six Nations campaign which starts next month and one of the key members of the backroom staff was National Academy analyst Marc Carter who is from Barry.

Wales begin their Six Nations under 20 campaign against Italy on Friday, February 3, and then return home to play England a week later in north Wales at Parc Eirias on Friday, February 10, kick-off 7.15pm.

Analysts like Marc are rarely seen and infrequently heard – situated on match days behind a bank of laptop screens or a camera high up in the gantry. But they are a crucial component in any modern, professional sports team.

As a native of Barry who attended Ysgol Glantaf in Cardiff it was through Cardiff Blues that Marc Carter got his big break in sports analysis.

A sports management degree at Swansea Met had entailed a year of football coaching in the USA, but no sooner had he returned to the UK than he'd been accepted onto an internship programme with the capital city region.

Marc recalled: "I landed on the Saturday and started the internship on the Monday.

"In truth, I had little time to reflect from stepping off that plane.

"I then started working with Phil Davies at Cardiff RFC, and he brought me along as an intern with Wales Under 20.

"Within six months I was offered a job in with north Wales rugby club RGC, so things moved very quickly."

Things didn't slow down for Marc. RGC's strong North American ties at the time – they had no fewer than nine Canadian players in their squad in 2010 – meant he was soon helping the Canadian national side adapt to new analysis software on their European tour.

"I was only 23 at the time, so it was an incredible experience for me. An academy role then came up at Scarlets so I moved back from north Wales.

"During my three seasons with the academy I was assisting with Wales Under 18 – including three tours to South Africa – so it was really good for my progression."

AMAZED

After two further years with Scarlets as an analyst for the senior team, Marc joined the under-20s national team on a permanent basis last year.

He's amazed at how much rugby analysis has changed since his first day as an intern with the Blues.

"I remember Rhodri Manning (now Blues' head of performance analysis) called me in and showed me some of the equipment.

"We had one camera view and basic coding. I had absolutely no knowledge at the time, but because it all happened so fast, I had no choice but to learn quickly.

"Now there's so much academia behind analysis, with places like Cardiff Met and the University of Glamorgan offering full-time degrees, modules and Masters programmes.

"It is a huge part of sport now. The depth in opposition analysis we do, the previews, training statistics and player tracking with Wales Under 20s is a very major part of our approach now."

Marc said players were getting up to speed with the information provided by analysts.

"Near enough every player will be in an academy system already, so they'll be familiar with the analysis software.

"The most important part from my point of view is letting the players understand what they're watching, not just watching it for the sake of it.

"Some of them will be 18 years of age, but it is amazing how they understand the game already."

Coaches and analysts are constantly assessing how new players can be integrated into international squads.

"From year to year, we could have 60 to 70 per cent new faces in the squad because of the nature of age group rugby, so it is really important for the coaches to understand the players who are coming through and how they fit the way we want to play.

"Overall, there's a younger squad this year, so a few of those players will be here next year as well, which is great.

"Last year they had an older squad and won the Grand Slam, and that showed the benefit of being together for an extended period. The coaches are particularly excited because we had a good under 18 team last year too, so we hope that talent can carry through."

Marc is particularly excited about returning to Parc Eirias next month.

"The buy-in from north Wales has been excellent. Seeing the children from the local rugby clubs clapping the boys out onto the pitch is brilliant.

"Everyone in north Wales is supportive of the game and the team, which makes it a great home for the under 20s."

Tribute to Jeff James who is to retire as a Vale councillor

THE Secretary of State for Wales, Alun Cairns, has paid tribute to long-standing Rhoose councillor Jeff James who will stand down from the council this May.

Mr Cairns said: "Jeff has been a stalwart of the community in Rhoose, sitting as an elected councillor continuously for nearly four decades.

"In that time he has represented Rhoose conscientiously and effectively, served as council leader, as chairman of the planning committee and in the council's cabinet.

"He is widely recognised as one of the wisest and most able councillors ever to have served in the Vale.

"It is difficult to underestimate Jeff's role in the community of Rhoose, taking a leading role with the community hall, the lifeguards, the local Remembrance ceremonies, in the governance of local schools and the history society.

"He is a local institution, having helped countless local people in his role as their local representative.

"His retirement is a loss to the Vale, but extremely well-earned. I am sure he will continue to be active in the community in Rhoose and in the many other roles he undertakes in the area.

"I want to take this opportunity to thank him for his long and distinguished public service."

Hannah Mills is to be honoured in Dinas

ONE of Team GB's top sports stars will be in Dinas Powys this week to be honoured by her local community.

Hannah Mills, who won gold in the Rio Olympics, makes a return to her home village where she will receive the congratulations of those there.

The Dinas Powys Community Council will unveil a memorial recording Hannah's achievement on Friday, January 20 at 11am at the Twyn in the heart of the old village. All are welcome.

For Hannah, it all started in Wales as she first learned to sail aged eight at Cardiff Sailing Centre.

Hannah first teamed up with 470 partner Saskia Clark in February 2011 gaining silver at the 2011 World Championships, followed by gold at the 2012 470 World Championships.

At London 2012, they took silver. Then at Rio 2016, Hannah and Saskia went one better and became Olympic champions.

JUNCTION CLOSED UNTIL THE SPRING

RESIDENTS in the Palmerston area could be waiting until the spring for the junction that leads from Langlands Road to Coldbrook Road East to be opened up.

Local people expected work to be complete on Langlands Road within a month or so.

Notices now say: 'Road closed 3/1/17 until spring'.

Mr Peter Woodford told The GEM: "Work started on September 28 – we're now up to 15 weeks. It is very frustrating for local residents."

It means that local drivers who live on Langlands Road, or along roads off it, must make their way up to Dobbins Road to get out of the estate.

On another issue relating to Langlands Road, Mr Woodford added that he would like to see a continuous white line on Langlands Road on the bend between Norwood Crescent and Falcon Road to make it safer.

DINAS AND TALBOT GREEN BURGLARIES: man to stand trial

A MAN accused of stealing hundreds of pounds worth of meat from a Dinas Powys family butcher just days before Christmas will stand trial at Cardiff Crown Court next month.

Alan James Hood, 52, from Dinas Powys, has been charged with burglary after Mark Griffith Family Butchers was broken into some time between 7pm on December 22 and 5am on December 23.

He is also accused of committing a burglary at First Choice Gymnasium, Talbot Green on January 1.

Hood entered no plea when he appeared at Cardiff Magistrates' Court on Monday, January 16. He has been remanded in custody and will now stand trial at Cardiff Crown Court on Monday, February 13.

A 26-year-old man from Cardiff has also been arrested in connection with both offences. He has been released on bail pending further investigation.

HATE CRIME WEEK POSTERS' MESSAGE TO PASSERS-BY

Christo Kodiyattu, Catalina Flores-Davies, Sgt Mark John, PC Dave Lawrence, Jane Hutt AM, Deborah Elward and deputy head of St Helen's School, Mrs Katy Galsworthy.

SOUTH Wales police officers joined Jane Hutt AM at St Helen's School last week, to congratulate those pupils who won awards in a poster competition held in November during 'Hate Crime Week'.

Two year-6 pupils, Christo Kodiyattu and Catalina Flores-Davies, won the awards with their posters, which will now be displayed as banners outside the school in Ty Newydd Road, Barry.

Jane Hutt said: "It was a delight to present the awards with PC Dave Lawrence to Christo and Catalina with the whole junior school attending the event.

"The standard of entry from pupils was very high showing their understanding of the need to stop hate crime. I know their message on the banners will have a strong impact on passers-by."

'Misleading claims on political leaflet' SAYS COUNCILLOR

DINAS Powys residents have recently received a political leaflet from Plaid Cymru which I suggest is rather misleading.

It appears to claim credit for a call to the Vale Council to record the voting record of all councillors.

In fact, this motion was actually brought before council for the second time in December 2016 by me and Sully Independent, Coun Kevin Mahoney.

I might add that the first time that we brought it to council in April 2016, the most vociferous objections were from the Plaid Cymru ranks, who vehemently criticised the motion both in the council chamber and then again in the press.

In fact, I had brought an initial request/suggestion similar to this via the formal questions to council as far back as June 26, 2013.

Unfortunately, the most recent presentation of the motion failed due to the opposition of the massed ranks of Labour and Conservative councillors present, who yet again voted against having their votes recorded for public display and examination.

The leaflet also claims credit for a proposal 'that councillors' attendance record be published monthly'. The hypocrisy beggars belief, as again Coun Kevin Mahoney and I brought the motion to council, proposing councillor attendance records be published on the Vale's website.

We were delighted to push the motion through despite opposition from every Labour councillor present. For the record the motion presented for adoption by me and Kevin Mahoney was as follows: 'All councillors' attendance records at full council and all other committees of which they are members be clearly displayed on their member's page on the Vale Council website and updated monthly.'

Incredibly, if the editor of Plaid's leaflet had taken the trouble to check the facts, he will have noticed that two regular offenders in regard to absence come from the ranks of his own political group!

Unfortunately, on the night of the council meeting on December 14, I was in a hospital bed so fellow Independent Coun Bob Penrose stood in for me as joint proposer of the motions to council.

Coun Chris Williams,
Dinas Powys ward,
Vale Council.

'Let yourself into the library'

BARRY Library is set to launch a new open access system, allowing members to use its facilities outside normal staffed hours.

Provided by Bibliotheca, the system uses innovative technology to open a library and manage all the basic systems without employees being present.

The open library concept represents a new way of working for public libraries, having been pioneered and successfully implemented across Scandinavia. The first UK library to adopt the concept was Farsley in Leeds in order to provide earlier opening hours.

By the end of 2016 there were a growing number of libraries across many authorities in the UK that had adopted the open library in some form. As with many other locations, at Barry Library there will be a staged approach so that customers can become familiar with the new technology so that demand can be assessed.

The intention at Barry is initially to extend opening hours on weekday evenings, while providing access on Sundays is another possibility.

Bibliotheca is a leading developer in this area and provides the technology for most of the open access libraries in the UK and Ireland.

The Bibliotheca Open+ system can control and monitor door entry, customer access, lighting, security gates, CCTV, the PA system and lockup procedures.

This enables use of the library without the need for staff to be present, including self-issue and return services and ICT access via library PCs or WiFi.

It will also allow the New Vale Learning Centre in Central Library to offer a range of courses outside of the current library opening hours.

Armed Forces veterans meet for the first time at Barry Athletic Club

Veterans at the first 'drop-in' meeting held at Barry Athletic Club.

THE first gathering of Armed Forces veterans at their new meeting place – Barry Athletic Club on the Island – got off to a flying start last week.

The club had generously responded to a public appeal by Barry veteran Robert Adams for a local drop in centre.

Ady Gratton, vice chairman of the club, who was on hand to welcome veterans, said: "We saw the appeal in The GEM and wanted to offer something to the veterans.

"I spoke to Dave Ireland of the Change Step charity and he gave a really good presentation.

"We have agreed to the charity using our bowls pavilion for weekly meetings free of charge."

The meetings will be on Tuesdays, from 10am until 1pm. They will be an opportunity for former servicemen and women to receive practical advice and help on a range of issues such as housing, benefits and other social matters.

Ady explained that there was also scope for the veterans to get more involved with the club.

"We hope that we can work with the group and integrate its members into our club. There are five sections that we have – lawn bowls, tennis, football, cricket and a brass band. The guys can become members of their chosen groups."

Those attending voiced their hope that other veterans living in the Vale would pop along in the coming weeks.

Change Step is a charity run by veterans for veterans and its local representative Dave Ireland said: "We will be a one-stop shop for advice on issues such as job advice, pensions, and social issues – because we are veteran to veteran, there is better engagement.

"We have a really good uptake rate and retention (of those attending).

"We speak the same language as other people around the table.

"Across Wales we have 22 mentors and 15 drop-in centres.

"One local guy of 77 years of age didn't realise he was eligible for a war disablement pension and we've been able to help him.

"Often veterans are not aware of the services that are available to them.

"The drop-in was first mooted by Robert Adams in The GEM in November

"We can't thank the club enough for responding. I was invited to do a presentation and they said 'We'd love to have you and the veterans here'."

Annually, 300 British Armed Forces' veterans decide to return or come to live in Wales – many to the Vale or Cardiff, so there are hopes numbers will increase as word spreads.

Blue plaque is unveiled at Barry Masonic Hall

RIGHT: The Blue Plaque is unveiled at Barry Masonic Hall.

THE Deputy Provincial Grand Master of South Wales Freemasons, Roy Woodward, whilst visiting Breaksea Lodge Installation, invited W Bro David Westall, to assist in unveiling the very first Blue Plaque on a Masonic centre in south Wales, at Barry.

Roy Woodward said: "It is my pleasant duty to unveil this Blue Plaque, and it is David's job to put it up!"

David Westall is the chairman of the Barry Masonic Hall Trust and was delighted and honoured to accept that challenge. The Blue Plaque will be displayed on the external elevation of Barry Masonic Hall in Broad Street, Barry.

The Blue Plaque was created by Sign of The Times Ltd, who were able to manufacture and hand paint it over the holiday period to arrive in time for Breaksea Lodge installation. It displays the Provincial Crest, the Tercentenary dates 1717-2017, and features the main words, 'Freemasons have held meetings in Barry since 1890'.

The new Worshipful Master of Breaksea Lodge Kevin Hearne said: "I wish to thank Sign of the Times for their craftsmanship and professionalism in pulling out all the stops to deliver the Blue Plaque in time for our ceremony."

The Blue Plaque is part of the South Wales Provincial initiatives during the Tercentenary Celebrations of 300 years of the United Grand Lodge of England. It is hoped that all 22 Masonic centres throughout south Wales will wish to show the heritage of Freemasonry to the wider community. The earliest records show a Lodge in Cardiff in 1754.

The next Blue Plaque is due to be unveiled today (January 19) by the Provincial Grand Master Gareth Jones at Services Lodge, in Penarth.

Primary School are Technotastic

THE Oak class (years five and six) at Oak Field Primary School visited Renishaw Engineering Company on Thursday, January 12 as part of their topic study, 'Technotastic!'.

They took part in coding activities, making electronic games and music, using programmes such as Makey Makey and BBC Microbit.

The children were very excited to learn with professionals, seeing and experiencing technology at its best.

They were given a tour of the site so they could see how things are made using the latest technology in dental and neurological fields and were blown away by what they saw.

Thank you Simon and Sarah at Renishaw! ND

Pupils win Young Musician heat

THE area final of Rotary Young Musician 2017 was held at Whitchurch High School on January 12, with students from Barry and Cardiff competing.

Two students from Ysgol Bro Morgannwg in Barry were judged the best in the vocal competition: Manon Ogwen Parry and Llinos Haf Jones.

The winner was Manon, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Llandaff who sang a piece by Mozart entitled 'Deh Vieni Non Tardar' and a lively piece by Tesori and Scanlan 'The girl in 14G'.

Llinos Jones, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Barry, was runner-up singing 'O Del Mio Dolore Ardour' by Gluck, and Martin Hamlisch's comic number, 'Nothing' from Chorus Line,

The judges, Enid Rosemary Davies and Rhian Owen, were impressed by both the vocal and acting talents of both competitors and hoped they would go on to make a career out of singing and acting.

Other competitors were James Bibey, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Cardiff East; Emily Hermon, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Cardiff Breakfast, and Paul Monaghan, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Cardiff Bay.

Manon goes on to compete at the District Final (South Wales) being held at Cardiff University School of Music on March 4.

Snap secrets

THE chairman had no problem in introducing the speaker at last week's meeting – as it was a long-standing Barry Forum member, Brian Trego – who had kept his skill in photography a closely-guarded secret.

It transpired he had won numerous photographic competitions, including the Swansea International Competition, and the Stanley Shell international competition, which he took while hemmed in by the crowd celebrating Chinese New Year. The photograph captured part of the crowd of Chinese people taken in Hong Kong, with smoke in their eyes.

His subject 'Taking better Photographs' was illustrated with his own work.

He emphasised the importance of light, and its value in capturing good shots, and demonstrated how back lighting, which many of us were told was best for all pictures, was in fact his least preferred position, and side, top or front light was often better. He noted that professionals seldom filmed in the months of July and August. The variety of prints he displayed was tremendous, and nearly all members jealously observed his presentation.

Most were taken in colour on his Canon SLR 6B digital camera, but some were mono colour.

His most exciting commission was with the RNLI when he went to sea with them, and dressed in appropriate gear, he was cast adrift as the lifeboat passed by him at speed. These photographs have been used extensively by the organisation.

The next meeting is on January 25, when Gareth Jones will be talking about 'Steam Trains in the 21st Century'.

New members are welcome, at £2 per meeting, which includes light refreshments starts at 10.15am and finishes by noon.

The Barry Men's Forum meets at the Trinity Presbyterian Church Hall every Thursday.

WINTER RAMBLING COMING TO AN END

WITH the annual Ramblers Festival of Winter Walks drawing to a close, Penarth and District Ramblers headed up to the beautiful setting of Pontsticill reservoir where 11 walkers joined Barrie on a glorious calm morning but with long distance views overshadowed by low cloud and wispy mist.

Walking adjacent to the Brecon Mountain Railway line, before joining the lane leading up to Parkwood Outdoor activity centre at Dolygaer, a gateway led into the muddy track through Cwm Callan.

After pausing near the top for coffee and warm mince pies also shared with three walkers heading the opposite way, a rough path on the open moorland littered with sheep and mares carrying unborn foals brought them to a viewpoint high above the misty Talybont reservoir.

Boggy open moorland tracks with views towards the disused quarries of Cwar yr Ystrad, Cwar yr Hendre and Cwar Blaen-dyffryn and the rocky plateau of Cefn yr Ystrad with a red kite flying overhead, was interrupted by a stop for lunch.

Then venturing on to view the Ogham stone, an ancient small standing stone leaning at an angle and inscribed on one side with lines their route continued along muddy tracks at Cwm Criban, with great views towards Pontsticill village huddled into the opposite valley.

A tunnel underneath the railway track and a grassy track brought them to the road for their return to the start, followed by swift refreshments in the very busy Red Cow.

For the final walk, Robin and his spaniel Pepper plus five walkers set off down to Rhossili on Gower where more mist made its presence known. After heading to the National Coastwatch Institution look-out point standing on the clifftop opposite the beautiful Worms Head, where the tide was still lapping the rocky causeway, an about -turn back to Rhossili Village.

In brightening weather conditions, a short steep climb brought them onto Rhossili Down and its trig point standing at 193m before the long walk along the ridgeway for the descent into Llangennith village.

Passing the delightful Church of St Cenydd built on the site of a 6th century llan with its lovely 20th century carved lychgate, the group made towards the rambler-and-dog-friendly17th century King's Head Inn for some rest and a delicious hot lunch.

Their return was made across the wide expanse of Rhossili Bay whilst admiring the adventurous surfers before climbing steps set into the steep cliff back to the National Trust car park.

On January 21, meet at 8.15am in Cogan to share transport to Storey Arms, in order to catch the 9.35am bus to Brecon for the eight-mile moderate steady climb back to Storey Arms; contact Barrie on 029 2053 0753.

On January 22, meet at 9am at Cogan Leisure Centre for an 8.5-mile moderate walk at Llangorse; contact Robin on 029 2051 4051.

Work starts on new community garden

WORK is now under way on a new community garden and nature area at Cemetery Approach in Barry.

Contractors started work on the site this week following final approval of plans by the Vale Council and Barry Town Council in September. The £550,000 scheme is being funded jointly by the two councils.

It will see the construction of a new park and small community building on the land either side of Cemetery Road in Barry. This land is currently owned by the Vale Council. However, once the work is complete, it will be leased to Barry Town Council, which will then take over control and maintenance of the new park.

Coun Neil Moore, Leader of the Vale of Glamorgan Council, said: "Parks and open spaces are what bring communities together and their importance cannot be overlooked. We know that residents have long desired that this land be put to good use and opened up to the public. This council made a commitment to doing just that and this is what we are now fulfilling."

Coun Emma Pritchard, Leader of Barry Town Council, said: 'This is an exciting project for the future of the local community in Barry. The Town Council has engaged with people on this development and residents' suggestions and votes have named the area 'Cemetery Approach Gardens' or Gerddi'r Fynwent'."

The first stage of the work now under way, will see the land cleared of weeds and other plants cut back. This is likely to take until the end of January when the main construction work will begin.

The scheme is due to be completed in April 2017.

'Barry Hospital Parking Eye makes it easier to find a space'

by GEM REPORTER

PEOPLE from across the Vale have been in touch with The GEM in recent weeks to complain about the new parking system at Barry Hospital.

Many said they were unaware of the new Parking Eye system, saying that initially there was a lack of signage and information from the hospital.

The health board said the system was introduced to ensure places were not misused, and there were enough available for legitimate visitors.

Some people have said Parking Eye should also allow appeals in Welsh, as well as English.

For some people there has been an up-side.

Mrs Kay Jones, who lives in Cowbridge, contacted us to say that it has freed up spaces and made visits easier.

She attends regular appointments at the physiotherapy department, and explained: "I have been undergoing physiotherapy since last July. I do not qualify for a disabled permit.

"During the summer and autumn, it was always a nightmare to find a space.

"Since Parking Eye was introduced there have always been spaces. There are warning signs displayed and the physiotherapy department warned me in advance of the new system; indeed, while waiting in reception, I heard them tell everyone, including patients on the telephone, about the new procedures.

"I find it so easy now to find a parking space, and then enter the vehicle details as I enter the hospital. I cannot fault the new system."

Some appeals against penalties have been successful: Mike Hill from Llantwit Major, told The GEM his daughter Sian had appealed against a notice that she had received relating to a visit to the hospital at 9.25am on November 26.

Mike said: "She went to the hospital for a physiotherapy appointment, and didn't see warning signs."

She also didn't notice anything in the reception area. In total her visit was just 30 minutes and she received a penalty.

Her appeal was successful – Parking Eye told her: "On this occasion, as a gesture of goodwill, we will be cancelling this charge.

"However, if future visits to this car park are made, please take note of the parking regulations on the signage throughout the car park and adhere to these, as it is applicable to all motorists using the car

Film crews boost our economy... but should they be given green light to park 'illegally'?

REPORT by TIM CHAPMAN

On the yellow lines at Bridgeman Road.

Vehicles parked on double yellow lines heading up Beach Road.

Bridgeman Road became one way up and down.

The lorries alongside Penarth Esplanade.

A Penarth resident contacted The GEM last week to highlight the proliferation of film company pantechnicons standing alongside kerbs that have parking restictions.

The resident explained: "I've seen a number that have been parked on yellow lines and yellow hatches, and they cause quite serious problems. They seem to park wherever they want to."

He also said that if agreement had been granted, he wondered whether this was "underpinned by a policy or set guidance".

The resident contacted the Vale and the police to voice his concerns, wondering whether 'risk assessments' and been done and whether the the impact on residents and other road users had been considered.

He pointed out that Bridgeman Road had been reduced to just one lane up and down.

On this occasion, The GEM understands a company associated with Channel 4 was filming Born to Kill, a new thriller.

The GEM approached the Vale Council to ask whether it was aware of the situation.

A spokesperson said: "A television crew were given special dispensation to park on some restricted areas around Bridgeman Road in Penarth on Tuesday, January 11, as they were filming in the location.

"Permission was granted, after consultation with the 'civil parking enforcement team' in Bridgend, who confirmed the arrangement would not cause undue disruption in the area.

"The film crew were also advised to contact the police to ensure parking the vehicles in that area was appropriate.

"There were conditions to permission being granted. They were not allowed to park within 10 metres of a junction or on the zig zag lines either side of a zebra crossing.

"Encouraging television companies to film in the Vale can be of major benefit to the area.

"That is especially true in this instance as Penarth Promenade is one of the county's most beautiful locations. Showcasing it can help boost tourism, which in turn gives the entire local economy a lift."

Cross Common Road junction in Dinas nearing completion

COUN Peter King, cabinet member for highways, Coun Gwyn John, cabinet member for visible services and Vale Council Leader Coun Neil Moore, recently carried out a site visit to see progress on the new road junction at Cross Common Road and Cardiff Road in Dinas Powys.

Couns Gwyn John and Peter King at Cross Common Road's new junction, with the village behind them.

Council leader Neil Moore and Coun Peter King check the new access onto the main Dinas-Barry Road.

Coun King said: "I am amazed at the difference this new road makes. I am pleased to confirm that it should be open and operational by the end of the month and this will make a vast difference to the current inadequate bridge currently in use.

"Although it is only a short stretch of road, the safety and accessibility to the area will be much improved."

Coun John who has responsibility for flooding was also impressed.

"When the new road is open it will be possible to remove the wooden stanchions currently supporting the bridge.

"This should help in alleviating the flooding potential to the homes in the area.

"I am really pleased that this work has finally been carried out and it should bring some peace of mind to local residents."

Coun Moore, who also inspected the site, added: "I am impressed with the speed and quality of the work and it should finally improve the road network in the area; and it will also be carried out without having to spend money on an inadequate bridge and road junction.

"This will be a vast improvement and it has been carried out without having to close the road, which would have been the case if the old bridge had been repaired."

Foodbank replies to a GEM letter writer's criticism

I WRITE in response to Mike Harper's letter, which was published in last week's edition of The GEM, headed 'Government DOES support foodbanks'.

In his letter, Mr Harper objects to The GEM's coverage of the foodbank's recent supermarket collection, on the basis that it included a statement that "foodbanks do not receive any Government support and rely totally on public generosity".

Mr Harper maintains that this is inaccurate, as the foodbank receives Gift Aid on financial donations and goes on to state that the sentence indicates either political bias, incompetence or an attempt by the foodbank to deliberately mislead the public.

The Vale Foodbank is run by Coastlands Family Church and like all registered charities we are able to receive Gift Aid on financial donations.

The comment re Government funding was included by one of our many hard-working volunteers who give their time selflessly to ensure that people in crisis in the Vale need not go hungry.

It was simply meant to convey our gratitude to all those who donate food and finance so generously to the foodbank, and to explain that we don't receive any direct funding from the Government.

As the Chair of Trustees, I would like to assure your readers that the foodbank is an apolitical organisation and that the Trustees are fully conversant with their responsibilities under Charity Law.

Our aim is to serve our local community and we are grateful to all those who enable us to do so – in December alone, we supported over 400 people, and could not have done that without the generous support of local people.

We hope that Mr Harper never needs our support, but would like to assure him that, as long as there are people in the Vale who are hungry, we will be here for them.

We thank Mr Harper for his interest in our work and would like to extend a warm welcome to him to visit one of our centres and see for himself the wonderful work being done by our volunteers.

Coun Peter King presents Sandra Riggott with her award for School Crossing Patrol of the Year

THE unsung heroes guiding Vale youngsters safely across our roads twice a day have been given the recognition they deserve.

At the recent Vale Road Safety Awards, an annual event held at the council's Dock Offices, those working on school crossing patrols throughout the county were recognised and rewarded for their contribution to road safety.

The co-ordinators and volunteers of the Kerbcraft Child Pedestrian Training Scheme were also thanked during this year's presentation.

The top award – School Crossing Patrol of the Year – was awarded to Sandra Riggott, an extremely popular, and well-known, member of the Colcot Primary School community.

A worthy winner of the title, Sandra, in addition to carrying out her regular duties, often visits the school to speak to the children about road safety, and about her job as a school crossing patrol officer.

Other award-winning school crossing patrol winners included Helen Wilkinson, who won the prize for Barry.

Helen has worked in the Vale since 2010, starting her career in Llantwit Major.

She has kindly helped the Road Safety Team over the past year by temporarily covering another site at St Helen's Junior School on Tynewydd Road, where she has also proved to be very popular.

David Regan was the winner for Penarth, Sully and Dinas Powys.

David has worked as a Vale 'lollipop man' for just over two years – part of a unique husband and wife patrol team in Penarth! He helps the students of St Cyres, among others, on Redlands Road, where he's already made a great impression with parents and children alike.

In the rural Vale area award, which covers Rhoose, St Athan, Llantwit Major and Cowbridge, the winner was named as Alex Daw.

She has worked at a busy crossing location in Llantwit Major for more than 13 years – a very conscientious officer who can be relied upon by all attending the new '21st century school', Ysgol Y Ddraig.

Furthermore, a special award was presented to Megan Blayney on behalf of all the volunteers at Kerbcraft Child Pedestrian Training Scheme. After helping out at Rhws Primary School previously, Megan has been a great help at Ysgol Y Deri this year.

The winners were then treated to a buffet and fun road safety quiz.

Vale Council cabinet member for building services, highways and transportation, Coun Peter King, thanked everyone for attending the presentation.

He said: "The School Crossing Patrol Service and Kerbcraft Schemes were established in recognition of the need to keep children safe while out and about, on and near our busy roads.

"The success of any scheme relies upon the commitment and dedication of the individuals involved.

"Standing in the pouring rain and watching drivers, while teaching a child road safety and providing a safe crossing location, takes a very dedicated and enthusiastic individual."

Turning a page opens a door to another world

AUTHOR and poet Iona Jenkins says: "The natural world has always drawn me into its mysteries and fired my imagination."

It is therefore perhaps unsurprising that fantasy and nature, labyrinths and language, and myth and music have collided in her two published works: The Unicorn Gate and Heartsong – A Collection of Reflections and Poetry.

Iona, whose journey has taken her from childhood in a small Yorkshire village to London and now to the Vale, said: "Since my childhood, I have been inspired by landscapes.

"I walked and explored the countryside around my home in a mining village, and this is how the natural world first drew me in.

"The possibilities offered by doorways and the magical hours of dawn and twilight, those mysterious in-between times which are neither day nor night, are all inspirations for me."

During her career in London as a counsellor and psychotherapist, she describes herself as "privileged to have been a travelling companion for a variety of people from diverse backgrounds and cultures, all on their own quests through the shadow and light of complex inner landscapes.

"My clients were a mixture of children, young people and adults, all heroes in their own stories, often displaying astonishing courage in challenging personal circumstances."

Iona said that much of her creative impulse still flows from that connection to the natural world, which developed during her youth that continues to today.

"I find myself powerfully influenced by the countryside in Wales where I now live," she noted.

"There is a wealth of inspiration in the histories, legends and folk tales of these Celtic landscapes, which are more than likely sensing some kind of resonance with the Irish ancestry on my father's side.

"I enjoy writing for both children and adults, finding doorways, discovering paths and walking new landscapes, both at home and abroad, in whatever direction."

Her books are available on Amazon in both print and Kindle versions.

BOMB SQUAD IS CALLED TO A LOCAL SCHOOL

SOUTH Wales Police and JSEOD (Joint Service Explosive Ordnance Disposal) carried out a controlled explosion at around 12.45pm last Sunday (January 15), following the discovery of non-suspicious, but potentially hazardous chemicals at Y Pant Comprehensive school in Pontyclun.

In the interests of safety, the chemicals were moved to waste ground near to Ysgol Gynradd Gymunedol, Miskin, where a cordon was put in place as a precautionary measure.

The incident is not being treated as suspicious and there is no risk to the public.

This incident follows a number of similar controlled explosions carried out in Wales, England and Scotland involving 2,4-Dinitrophenylhydrazine – commonly referred to as 2,4-DNP – stored at schools, colleges and universities.

A Welsh Government spokesman said: "We are aware of a number of incidents across the UK relating to the chemical, 2,4 DNP, which is used in preparation of science A /AS level experiments.

"The Consortium of Local Education Authorities for the Provision of Science Equipment (CLEAPSS) has issued a UK-wide reminder for all schools and further education colleges to check if they have a supply of this chemical and ensure it is being stored correctly and safely.

"Schools and colleges have been advised that if they have any queries or concerns, to check the CLEAPSS website and, if necessary, call their helpline for advice.

"We continue to maintain contact with CLEAPSS and the UK Government, as well as exchanging information with relevant organisations, such as the Welsh police forces and local authorities."

Renowned hairdresser's demonstration

JAY MAHMOOD, a renowned hairdresser, took time out of his schedule to give a masterclass in cutting techniques to hair and beauty students at Cardiff and Vale College (CAVC).

The 'Global Creative Ambassador for Cutting' at hair colour company Goldwell, gave two classes for students and staff at CAVC's urbasba salon at its City Centre Campus.

Speaking of his session at CAVC, Jay said: "I'm really happy with today – I think the college does an amazing job; it's so inspiring. It's not just about giving the students a skill, the teachers are more like life mentors and life coaches.

"They genuinely care about the direction their students are going in with their careers and I very rarely see that.

"The environment is very important and this is inspiring – I am going to come away from here inspired myself. It's a fresh and really modern set-up."

Putting health and social care at the forefront of the Assembly's priorities

INVESTING in health and social care has been the key priority of the Welsh Government Budget for 2017/18.

We need to invest in social care, as well as the NHS, to ensure that when people are discharged from hospital, care services are in place either at home, or in another care setting, in order to help reduce re-admissions.

Last week, Cabinet Secretary Mark Drakeford AM opened the final budget debate in the Senedd with the announcement that a further investment of £10m would be made in social care – over and above the additional £25m announced in the draft budget in October last year.

This was welcomed by the cross-party finance committee as an important additional investment alongside the £240m uplift in the health spend in this budget.

This news was very important in relation to the launch of a consultation on the draft Dementia Strategic Action Plan for Wales announced by Cabinet Secretary Vaughan Gething.

He accompanied me on a visit to Ty Hapus in Barry before Christmas, to meet people living with or affected by dementia and to learn more about the importance of dementia-friendly services.

Ty Hapus is a wonderful facility in Barry supported by the Alzheimer's Society, and has given new opportunities and meaning to people's lives. I would like to thank all those who work in our social care sector in the Vale of Glamorgan – in care homes and in the community – for the vital and valuable work that you do.

Vaughan Gething AM stated that dementia is one of the biggest healthcare challenges our generation faces – with between 40,000 - 50,000 people in Wales currently living with dementia.

I welcome the way the Vale of Glamorgan is responding to this challenge by supporting the Dementia Friends/Dementia Supportive Communities campaigns, with voluntary groups developing initiatives such as the Memory Cafe in Dinas Powys and dementia-friendly facilities in shops, cafes and businesses.

This links to the importance of focusing on 'prevention' in our policies and services alongside our increased investment in health and social care. The areas for action in the draft dementia plan are now out for consultation and I am seeking responses to feed back to my colleagues in the Welsh Government.

Three of the five action points are as follows:

• Raising awareness of how to help people reduce their risk of developing dementia, or delay its onset.

• Early support and treatment for people with dementia, their carers and facilities following diagnosis.

• The availability of increased support, whether in a person's home, or in a care home.

The consultation can be accessed via the Welsh Government website: consultations.gov.wales/consultations/draft-national-dementia-strategy.

Another important statement was made last week by the Health Secretary on the 'New Treatment Fund' with £80m allocated over the life of this Welsh Government.

The New Treatment Fund will speed up access to new medicines, offering a real step forward where there are limited treatment options available for people suffering from life-threatening or life-limiting illnesses, such as cancers, rheumatoid arthritis, epilepsy, heart disease and the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV).

I hope these announcements – backed by finance – show how we are continuing to make health, social care and prevention a priority.

Renowned Cowbridge ballet teacher on quest for former students

by Andy Johnstone

WELL-KNOWN dance teacher, Moya Vahey founder of the School of Russian Classical Ballet in Cowbridge, is on a quest...

Last summer, she visited Jersey, where the Dance World Cup was being held, and met Fiona Breen (on left in the photograph), one of her former pupils from the 1980s.

"We have kept in touch over the years," recounted Moya, "exchanging Christmas cards and the like, and it was lovely to see her again."

"She gave me a photograph, reliably dated July 23 1980, taken at the Federation of Russian Classical Ballet examinations at my school in Cowbridge. "

Moya teaches the Legat Foundation Syllabus of Russian Classical Ballet, which is recognised for its fluidity and strength, as well as its elegant style.

A young Fiona Breen (left). Do you recognise any other of these dancers?

The style was founded by Nicolai Legat, a dancer and ballet master in the Mariinsky Theatre, St Petersburg. His students included legendary names such as Pavlova, Nijinsky, Karsavina,Vaganova and many more.

"I have been teaching this method of ballet in Cowbridge for 47 years, and I think my studio was then at the Institute [now housing Strawberry Fields greengrocers], although I have been at Bijou on Eastgate for five years.

The quest is now on to try and identify the other girls in the photograph.

"Perhaps some are still in the Vale, or even Cowbridge," said Hastings-born Moya, whose earlier training and career took her throughout Europe, and whose school has, since 1969, seen hundreds of young dancers take their first tentative terpsichorean steps and achieved grace, elegance and success since.

Do you recognise anyone in the photograph?

Macmillan seeks volunteers

MACMILLAN Cancer Support is asking people in Wales to make volunteering their belated 2017 New Year resolution, to help it reach even more people who are affected by cancer.

Macmillan is looking for a range of volunteers, including ambassadors to deliver talks about the organisation and its work, fundraising group members to help organise local events and people who can help with local collections.

Whatever the role, volunteers will be helping Macmillan to increase awareness and raise money to help us support people affected by cancer.

Regional fundraising volunteer manager Catherine Winder, said: "January is a time for new beginnings, and setting ourselves resolutions for the year ahead – so why not set yourself a worthwhile resolution for 2017?

"There is a volunteering opportunity for you, and regardless of the role, you will be helping us to support people affected by cancer and to ensure that no one faces cancer alone.

"We appreciate that finding the time to volunteer can be challenging, so we have a range of roles to suit your existing commitments.

"Macmillan provides training if it's needed and offers ongoing support to ensure all our volunteers get the best possible experience while helping us be there for people affected by cancer."

People can register their interest at http://volunteering.macmillan.org.uk/ or by contacting Regional Fundraising Volunteer Manager Catherine Winder on 07736 277967 or cwinder@macmillan.org.uk.

GVS to host Heritage Lottery Fund surgery

STAFF at the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) are aware that some community and voluntary groups are nervous of filling in grant application forms. This is why they offer a one-to-one advice service where you can meet an HLF officer and talk through your project and the process of applying for a grant.

The HLF funds heritage projects but that doesn't just mean old buildings.

It can also include history and heritage reflected through communities, people's memories and stories and working with young people to explore ideas of identity and place.

Glamorgan Voluntary Services (GVS) has announced that Julie Hughes, HLF Development Officer, will be available at their office in Barry Community Enterprise Centre, Skomer Road, Barry, CF62 9DA on Tuesday, January 31.

If you would like to book a meeting, contact HLF on 029 2034 3413 or e-mail Wales@hlf.org.uk by Tuesday 24th January 2017.

You will need to provide HLF with some basic information before the meeting through their website www.hlf.org.uk/english/howtoapply by Tuesday January 24.

They will then confirm your meeting slot.

Extra £30million boost for affordable housing welcomed

Ogmore AM, Huw Irranca-Davies, has praised the Welsh Government's announcement that they will invest an additional £30 million this year towards providing 20,000 affordable new homes in Wales.

He said that the affordable housing target of 10,000 additional affordable homes in the last Assembly was exceeded, with the housing supply pact between the Welsh Government and Community Housing Cymru playing an important role in meeting that target.

"Locally, last year, both Rhondda Cynon Taf and Bridgend councils combined, were successful in providing 1,112 new affordable dwellings throughout the boroughs, allowing families who want to stay close to their home communities to live and work.

"It is encouraging to hear this news which highlights the Welsh Labour Government's plans to invest over £1.5 billion in affordable homes during this term of government.

" There is an acute shortage of housing in Wales and any investment will help in delivering good quality, affordable homes for children and families over the next 5 years," he added.

Believe the hype... LA LA LAND IS A MASTERPIECE!

FOR a man making only his second feature film, Damien Chazelle showed he had no fear with 2015's taut and tense masterpiece Whiplash. A tour de force of storytelling, it highlighted Chazelle's skill – and also put even more pressure on his follow-up.

So far, any fears of an underwhelming next step have been unfounded, as La La Land has already received countless awards (including seven Golden Globes) and is sure to feature highly in the Oscar race.

A musical, it tells the story of Sebastian (Ryan Gosling), a jazz pianist, who meets Mia (Emma Stone), an aspiring actress coping with another setback in her career. The pair strike up a spark, but as failure gives way to success for both of them, will love be able to conquer all...

The opening scene of a film is integral to capture the audience's attention and set the tone for what's to follow. As La La Land opens with a breathtaking, single-take song and dance number on a Los Angeles freeway, the clever editing and fizzy cinematic visuals define perfectly what is to follow over the ensuing two hours or so.

If your heart is captivated by this bravura opening salvo, then expect it be overtaken with love and admiration by the time the end credits roll.

It's so easy to overly praise (or eye with cynicism) films that have been received with almost universal acclaim as La La Land has been. However, it is praise that is well-deserved and thoroughly justified; to call this film a masterpiece may be bold – but it's also true.

This is the film that comes along to define a period of time, to capture audience's attentions; it takes a Hollywood staple (in this case the musical), with a story partly about Hollywood itself, and imbibes it with a verve and spark that is both reverential to the genre, but also allows it breathe in the 21st century.

That it comes from a writer/director who is only on his third feature film in Damien Chazelle is most mind-blowing of all. If the framework of the story is one that has been played out before countless times, it's the delivery and execution of it that truly astounds, taking the familiar and giving it a fresh lick of paint.

Chazelle's bold direction is majestic, the camera constantly moving, the editing sharply done, slick without being too quick for its own good. His

by GARETH JAMIESON
Follow Screen Talk on Twitter – @GEMScreenTalk

use of long takes within scenes works terrifically well, showing faith in his two leads to allow their natural charisma and personality to shine through.

The musical numbers are staged with an élan that you can't help but fall for, yet by and large feel more grounded than fantastical, while the jazz music elements riff on Chazelle's ability to take things in unexpected and exciting directions.

He shows a warmth and wit, undercutting the glorious homages to the classic musicals like Singin' In The Rain and The Umbrellas of Cherbourg with a modern twist, whether it's a dance number being interrupted by a mobile phone call, or a smoothly-shot sequence that leads to one of the film's laugh-out-loud moments (always pay attention to street signs!).

This is the third film that Ryan Gosling and Emma Stone have starred in together (Gangster Squad and Crazy Stupid Love are the other two for this future pub quiz question), and their chemistry and relationship onscreen is palpable.

This is a film that is essentially a two-hander, the film resting on their performances, but they make you fall in love with them and engage with them in naturally-charming performances. The song and dance numbers (which aren't as prevalent as you may think) are delivered with gusto by the pair, and draw you deeper into their relationship.

It's not all sunshine and happiness, but then that's the point that Chazelle makes as the story is told across five seasons (the visuals slyly echoing the changing of time); happy endings are earned, not deserved.

But this merely makes the film resonate even more, and come La La Land's subtly beautiful climax, you'll feel like you have truly experienced two people falling in love and all the joy and sadness that can bring, in what can only be described as the most incredible and exceptional film you're likely to see this year.

VERDICT: A solid gold masterpiece that is deserving of its lavish praise, La La Land is a tour de force, the perfect marriage of performance, direction, editing and storytelling. Damien Chazelle gives the film an incredibly cinematic visual feel; while the performances from Ryan Gosling and Emma Stone are gorgeously realised – without a doubt, you need La La Land in your life! Essential viewing.

SEE THIS IF YOU LIKED: Singin' In The Rain (1952), The Artist (2011).

Health team praised by minister

THE 'life-changing' impact of the team at the Blood Borne Virus (BBV) Outpatient Clinic at UHW has been praised by the Minister for Health.

Vaughan Gething AM, the Cabinet Secretary for Health Wellbeing and Sport, met the team during a visit to the hospital and was impressed with their work.

He spoke with staff and was told about their role as part of the national programme and some of the innovative steps the team are taking.

Mr Gething said: "I was delighted to meet the team, to see people from nursing, specialist nurses, people who run the clinic and some of the consultants too.

"To see that this is an 'all-Wales' team based here in Cardiff and see really high quality care, but really innovative care as well, where clinicians are taking a lead together on how to deliver a better service with better outcomes for patients."

The BBV clinic principally looks after patients with hepatitis B and C. It is designed to be as close to a one stop shop as is possible at present. Patients who attend have access to a medical opinion, a specialist nurse consultation, a specialist pharmacist consultation and a fibroscan – a non-invasive method for assessing liver disease.

Phlebotomy is carried out on site and treatment started and monitored within the clinic.

Independents claim a victory over councillors' attendance details

by GEM REPORTER

INDEPENDENT councillors say a successful motion has forced the Vale Council to adopt a policy of publishing councillors' attendance details on its website.

The motion was put forward by Sully councillor Kevin Mahoney and seconded by fellow independents Chris Williams and Bob Penrose at December's full council meeting.

Some councillors argue that published 'attendance details' do not necessarily reflect the whole picture in relation to their duties.

Coun Mahoney told The GEM: "Since being elected, I always published my full attendance record on my own website in the yearly 'personal transparency report' that I post there. I find it astonishing that the Vale hasn't also automatically done so without my having to push through this motion.

"I think it is important that Vale residents have the opportunity to examine their own ward councillors' attendance records at council meetings, and while delighted to see my proposal voted through it was disappointing to note that every Labour councillor present voted against it."

RECORDED VOTES

Coun Mahoney said he was less happy about another motion which was rejected.

"On a less successful note, my re-presented motion to have all Vale councillors' votes automatically recorded for future public examination and explanation was voted down by a large majority 10 for 33 against".

"Again I was disappointed to see every Labour councillor present voting against, and with the Conservatives also voting against it seems clear that the majority of Vale councillors do not wish to see their voting records highlighted in order that local residents can see what decisions their ward councillors are making on their behalf. One can only wonder why.

"I would like to think that Vale council taxpayers are as disappointed as me that so many of their elected representatives are repeatedly fighting tooth and nail not to have a published record of their voting patterns on clear public display.

"This is the second time that I have presented this motion only for it to be voted out,

"It is heartening that at long last I have been able to persuade the Plaid group on the council, who GEM readers might recall were the most vociferous opponents of the automatic recording of votes the last time that I proposed it, to finally come round to my way of thinking, and to vote in favour along with the Independent group on this occasion."

Coun Mahoney added: "It's such a pity that it is left to myself and the other independents to repeatedly try to push through the openness and transparency for Vale residents that I feel that they deserve and which one would have thought should be an automatic procedure."

'WHOLE STORY'

Coun Neil Moore, Leader of the Labour Group on the Vale Council commented that a lot had been said about the attendance decision, but there had also been a great deal of mischief made about it too.

He pointed out that some councillors are involved in lots of other meetings on council business that would not be recorded.

He explained: "No one is opposed to their attendances being recorded at council meetings as this is already available through council meeting minutes, which are readily available on the council's website.

"The issue with the recent decision is that it does not tell the whole story of the work carried out by councillors.

"For example, many of us, especially those of us with special responsibilities, do not only attend council meetings.

"Many of us meet both internal and external colleagues which are never recorded and could not necessarily be recorded on a members' web page.

"What has been agreed is both misleading and can be misconstrued.

"Sometimes councillors miss a meeting because they have to be elsewhere on official business.

"I meet Welsh Government Ministers and officials on a regular basis. I also meet with all the other Welsh council leaders on a regular basis.

"None of these are recorded anywhere and attending such meetings means that sometimes I have had to give my apologies for meetings as I cannot be in two places at once.

"The situation is also compounded by the fact that many miss a meeting because they are ill, have other family commitments and sometimes because committee dates are changed at short notice and alternative arrangements and appointments have already been made, thereby preventing their attendance.

"On a personal basis, I spend hundreds of hours a month on council business, both in the office, at external meetings or at home, but none of those could ever be accounted for by council officers updating our individual web pages.

"Councillors also spend unaccounted time dealing with issues on their constituents' behalf or on their constituents' concerns. Many councillors also attend school governors' meetings or residents' meetings, etc.

"Therefore, although the principle of declaring when a councillor attends a meeting is laudable, in practice it does not give a full picture of their work."

Fellow Labour cabinet member Lis Burnett said she had opposed the attendance motion because it was politically motivated.

She said: "I am happy to publish my full calendar and have done so often in the past.

"I voted against Coun Mahoney's politically-motivated motion as it seeks to mislead Vale residents.

"A simple check will show that Coun Mahoney often attends fewer meetings in a whole year than many attend in a month or, for cabinet members, a week.

"It also fails to recognise external appointments and the valuable work many councillors do in school governing bodies, residents groups and local organisations, and misleads residents on the full extent of a councillor's workload.

"Probably more important than whether a councillor is present at a meeting is what they actually contribute while there."

Coun John Thomas said the Conservative group had no issue with votes being recorded.

He explained: "However, if this motion had been passed in the council meeting it would have meant the council investing in electronic voting equipment immediately with members having no idea as to the cost involved.

"Alternatively every member's vote would have to be taken individually for every decision made, which would not be practical.

"Although I believe the current system of recording votes when requested works, I would support the electronic recording of all votes once the financial implications of such a system have been fully explored."

SCRUTINY

Plaid Cymru councillor Ian Johnson said the party was keen to see full and transparent scrutiny of the Vale Council's £215m budget.

"That's why we support broadcasting council meetings on the internet, electronic voting to show whether councillors vote how they say they did and giving residents the right to speak at planning meetings, as they were able to on the recent Windsor Road United Reformed Church planning application."

"However, we're not purely obsessed with council constitution matters. Plaid Cymru councillors spend their time working for their constituents at scrutiny meetings and in the ward, being more concerned with improving results for our schoolchildren, clean-ing up our streets and attracting better jobs to the Vale."

Remembering brave women on St Dwynwen's day

ON January 25, Welsh Women's Aid will remember St Dwynwen's strength to recover from abuse and celebrate thousands of Welsh women who endure male violence every day.

St Dwynwen, celebrated in Wales as the patron saint of lovers, devoted her life to promoting loving relationships in the 5th Century, after surviving rape by her partner and escaping her father's attempt to force her to marry a man she did not love.

St Dwynwen's Day is usually promoted to celebrate loving and caring partnerships, but for some women in Wales it is just another day in which experiencing violence and abuse – dictates their relationships, and affects the rest of their lives.

Welsh Women's Aid wants to commemorate St Dwynwen's Day as a day to remember that most women who have experienced abuse still rise, every day, to hold down jobs, care for others, and hold families and communities together.

'Still We Rise' (January 25) will feature an evening of entertainment, including Welsh singer-songwriter Bronwen Lewis, DnA Folk, the African Community Choir Sanctuary Sisters, Maria and Emily Davies (mother and sister of Wales player Sam Davies), performances from the musical Cappuccino Girls and readings by survivors.

The event will be hosted by Mal Pope at Coast in Swansea, from 7pm-10pm. Tickets cost £15, including a buffet meal. To buy a ticket or donate the cost of a ticke, visit: https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/still-we-rise-tickets-30029222212

The award winning comedy writer, Sian Harries, will be joining Welsh Women's Aid as their new Ambassador.

Anyone affected by domestic abuse, sexual violence or any other form of violence against women in Wales, can contact the Live Fear Free helpline on 0808 80 10 800 for 24-hour confidential information and support, and help to access local services. The helpline now also operates a web chat provision between 9am–9pm every day. See http://livefearfree.gov.wales/how-to-get-help.

NEWS FROM FONMON APIARY

Tackling the curse of the Varroa mite

THE mild conditions prevail, although a brief spell of Arctic weather is forecast.

A timely reminder has been issued by the National Bee Unit pointing out that colonies could well run short of food due to their external activity brought on by the very mild conditions.

So far I have no worries about lack of stores because all of the colonies were well provided for.

Monitoring of the Varroa mite is an on-going activity of mine. This is achieved by way of trays inserted beneath the mesh floors. When I examine the debris (bits of wax and bees and dead mites) it is obvious that the Queens are still laying and new bees are emerging.

How do I know this? Well, the fallen Varroa mites indicate this very fact. Adult female mites are dark brown in colour, I am observing these brown mites along with pale (white) mites and it is the presence of pale mites that is the clue! Pale mites are only present when new bees are emerging.

Some of the adult mites, when viewed using a microscope, can be seen to be very bloated, this only occurs when they are ready to commence their breeding cycle. These bloated females must have been dislodged by a bee before they could enter a cell containing a larva that is about to go through its metamorphosis and emerge as a honeybee.

So how do the pale (white) mites appear along with the brown mites? When a Queen bee lays an egg in one of the cells in a honeycomb, in three days it will turn into a larva (maggot), for the next five to six days the bees (nurse bees) who look to the wellbeing of this larva will feed it and when the time is right, food will be deposited in the cell, a wax capping will be added, metamorphosis will be activated and some 12 days later a new bee should emerge.

Before the cell is sealed over, there is a chemical signal either from the nurse bee informing the larva that it is to be sealed in or the larva lets the nurse bee know it is ready to be sealed in. This chemical signal is also picked up by the adult Varroa mite and she enters the cell containing the larva and is sealed in with it.

The Varroa is now going to produce young within this sealed cell. Mother and offspring will live off the developing larva using its body fluids as a foodstuff. Because the Varroa cannot chew through the wax capping on the cell their feeding is done on the rear end of the larva, they leave the head end well alone. If the larva die because of the predation by the Varroa, then the adult Varroa and her young are doomed. It does occur that the new bee is ready to emerge from the cell, before all the young Varroa have reached maturity, hence I find pale mites.

These pale mites will die of course, and never become breeding females but they have affected the new bee's health, a sick bee emerges.

There are more problems due to the Varroa mite, but that is enough for now.

'E-cigarette chargers safety risk' – warning

SHARED Regulatory Services is advising local businesses to proceed with caution when selling e-cigarette chargers to consumers – after more than half of the products they recently surveyed failed safety tests.

In total, 17 e-cigarette chargers were purchased from a number of small retailers across Bridgend, Vale of Glamorgan and Cardiff, and 10 (58 per cent) failed an initial screening test.

The chargers were sent for further testing, but failed to meet the requirements of the Electrical Equipment (Safety) Regulations 1994 for a variety of reasons, including: markings/instructions; construction; protection from access to live parts and electric shock and pin length insufficient.

Officers seized all non-compliant chargers from the premises that had failures and issued advice to traders on how to avoid selling unsafe and non-compliant electrical items.

Coun Gwyn John, chair of the joint committee for Shared Regulatory Services, said: "The use of e-cigarettes as an alternative to tobacco products such as cigarettes and hand rolling tobacco is on the increase, and so the result of this survey sends a clear warning to businesses of the requirement to be diligent when selecting products to sell to the public.

"We are dedicated to protecting consumers from harm, so I hope this survey also helps raise awareness amongst our residents, and provides reassurance that our Trading Standards team is working hard to ensure unsafe and dangerous products are not being sold across the region."

To report an unsafe product, or for advice on your rights when purchasing goods or services, call Citizens Advice Consumer Service on 03454 040506. All calls are logged and forwarded to Shared Regulatory Services' Trading Standards team for assessment.

Coun Gwyn John, chair of the joint committee for Shared Regulatory Services, has urged residents "to be mindful of safety" when purchasing e-cigarette chargers.

Severn Bridge tolls cut will 'boost the Welsh economy'

Secretary of State for Wales, Alun Cairns, has announced that Severn Bridge tolls will be halved from 2018 onwards, with most drivers paying £1.50 to make the crossing in either direction.

Pictured are: David Davies MP (Monmouth), Alun Cairns MP, and Secretary of State for Transport Chris Grayling MP.

The lower toll charges would be introduced when the crossings return to public ownership and are intended to save drivers and businesses money, boosting the economy along the M4 corridor.

"The UK Government is also looking at removing toll barriers and introducing free-flow tolling on the Severn crossings that will help cut congestion and journey times.

"For some vehicles the cost of crossing the bridge will fall by 75 per cent with vans and small buses paying only £3 instead of the current £13.40 charge. For cars, the price will also fall to £3, less than half of the current £6.30 charge," he explained.

Mr Cairns, who is MP for the Vale of Glamorgan, made the announcement in a letter to all Welsh MPs and AMs, and publicly launched the proposals at the bridges with UK Government Transport Secretary Chris Grayling, on Friday.

He said: "This is excellent news for people living and working in Wales who use the Severn Bridge, particularly van drivers who will pay over 75 per cent less money. These savings will make a huge difference to those who use the crossing regularly and it will provide a major boost to companies pitching for new business, who can now be much more competitive.

"The Severn crossing is a vital artery into Wales and reduced tolls demonstrate once again that Wales remains open for business. The M4 corridor is at the heart of the Welsh economy, and enterprises from Carmarthen to Cowbridge, Cardiff and Caerphilly, should receive a welcome boost."

Opposition parties have criticised the UK Government for not removing the charge entirely when the bridges are returned to public ownership, but in Mr Cairns' letter to Welsh AMs and MPs, he explained the UK Government's decision to retain some charges:

"We want to be clear that there is no intention to use the tolls for any purpose other than to support their operation and maintenance, and to repay the debt incurred by the UK taxpayer to fix latent defects on the crossings."

LOCAL VETERANS AFFECTED BY LARIAM ARE URGED TO CONTACT FORCES' HELPLINE

by Andy Johnstone

FOR generations, Wales has been a fertile recruiting ground for all services of HM Armed Forces; a quick look in most cemeteries in Bridgend, Cowbridge and the Vale will evidence this and reveal at least one Commonwealth War Grave.

But in this time of anniversaries – halfway through the commemorations for the Great War, the 25th anniversary of the Gulf War last year, 25 years since British Forces first deployed to Bosnia and 35 years since the Falklands War – thoughts are with the health of the living, not the lives of the fallen.

UK Forces have routinely been prescribed Lariam (Mefloquine) for many years before deployment to theatres where malaria is a problem.

However, some personnel have reported serious psychological side effects including depression and suicidal ideation.

These effects, within the civilian population, would be bad enough, but tend to adversely affect those with frequent exposure to traumatic events, and those with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), insomnia, anxiety, alcohol and anger-management issues.

A Royal Marine of 45 Commando training in Ghana. Image by PO (Phot) Wheelie A'barrow; © Crown copyright (2016).

The first is an expected occupational hazard for many frontline troops and the others are all too common within the military.

Other side effects reported include nausea.

Speaking in May 2016, the then Chief of the Defence Staff, General Sir David Richards, who had raised the issue of concern over the drug within the MoD, said: "If the use of Lariam is banned, or even restricted, it would not be before time."

Recognising these concerns, in October last year, the Ministry of Defence (MoD) launched the 'Mefloquine Single Point of Contact' for current and former Service personnel who have concerns about their experience of Lariam.

Speaking to The GEM, a Royal British Legion (RBL) spokesperson said: Any veterans in the Vale of Glamorgan or Bridgend who have been affected by the use of Lariam while a member of the Armed Forces should contact their GP and the new Mefloquine Single Point of Contact.

The spokesperson continued: "The RBL believes service personnel should only be prescribed Lariam where alternative anti-malarial drugs are inappropriate and after a face-to-face health risk assessment by a properly trained and regulated healthcare professional.

"We are concerned to learn of instances where this has not happened and has subsequently led to serious and long-lasting adverse health conditions."

The spokesperson said that the RBL is encouraged that the MoD is revising its malaria prevention policy, and would like to see this new guidance reissued to all relevant medical staff to ensure that any anti-malarial drugs prescribed are appropriate for the individual patient.

"We also welcome the establishment of the Mefloquine Single Point of Contact for current and former Service personnel who have concerns about their experience of Lariam, as this should help identify any negative health implications quickly and ensure that appropriate support is put in place for the individual concerned. "

Veterans who think their health has been adversely affected by the use of Lariam whilst a member of the Armed Forces, should contact their GP for health advice, and the new Mefloquine Single Point of Contact service on 0306 770 5059 or via SGDPHC-MEFLOQUINESPOC @mod.uk.

Calls to the line are confidential and no personal details are retained. Lines are open from 9am to 5pm, Monday to Friday, except bank holidays.

'Get a winter flu jab' – AM urges

ON a visit to Evans Pharmacy in Barry, the Vale AM, Jane Hutt, received her winter flu vaccination, and is urging others to follow suit.

She said: "Winter brings significant pressures for the NHS, but flu vaccinations are one example of the good work pharmacies can do. The flu can be particularly severe for those aged over 65, children, pregnant women, and those with underlying health conditions or weakened immune systems.

"A vaccination can be really important and I would encourage people to go to a pharmacist and get theirs done. It's still not too late to do that."

CHOIR HANDS £1,618 FROM CONCERT TO TY HAFAN CHILDREN'S HOSPICE

PETER EVANS, chairman of the South Wales Male Choir is pictured with members of the Cardiff group from Barry and the Vale, presenting a cheque for £1,618 to Emma Sankey, regional community fundraiser of Ty Hafan children's hospice at Sully – the proceeds of a recently-held concert in Penarth.

The rescue at Kenfig Sands.

Thrown horse rider rescued by the RNLI

PORTHCAWL RNLI crew were paged by UK Coastguards just before 1pm on Sunday, January 15 following reports that a female horse rider was injured at Kenfig Sands, Sker Beach.

The D class lifeboat, Jean Ryall, was launched with four crew aboard and soon arrived on scene, two miles north west of the station.

Due to the remoteness of the incident, the UK Coastguard co-ordinated a multi-agency rescue plan.

It included Porthcawl Coastguard unit conveying a paramedic from an NHS land ambulance across Kenfig Nature Reserve to Sker beach; a Coastguard Search and Rescue (SAR) helicopter being scrambled; and the RNLI lifeboat making an approach by sea.

Lifeboat crewman, Chris Page, said: "The tide was right out, so our helmsman landed us as close to the reported incident area as he could.

"However, we then found that we had to make best speed by foot carrying our first aid kit over half a mile across the beach.

"We were first on scene and carried out first aid, at the same time a colleague cleared a landing site for the SAR helicopter."

An RNLI spokesman reported that: "The casualty had head injuries and was very cold from being temporarily unconscious and lying on the cold wet sand. Once the helicopter had landed on the beach air crew and the NHS paramedic carried out further medical assistance before the casualty was flown direct to the University Hospital Wales, Heath Cardiff."

Lifeboat deputy launch authority, Aileen Jones, said: "People don't normally associate our lifeboats with being launched to land-based casualties, but as shown today this was the quickest way to reach the casualty and get first aid started.

"This rescue was a multi-agency effort where all teams worked together under the UK Coastguard Agency.

"Hopefully, the casualty will make a full recovery."

Families back brain tumour campaign

THE families of two south Wales girls whose brain tumour symptoms were missed repeatedly by doctors are backing a UK-wide campaign to raise awareness of the disease.

Five-year-old Lil Davies from Cardiff and eight-year-old Layla-mae Cummings from Barry both suffered from health problems for months before they were diagnosed with a brain tumour.

Now their families are speaking out in support of HeadSmart, a campaign run by The Brain Tumour Charity to raise awareness of the signs and symptoms of childhood brain tumours.

HeadSmart has already helped cut the average diagnosis time for a childhood brain tumour in the UK from more than 13 weeks to seven weeks.

A new drive aims to bring that figure below four weeks, in order to save lives and reduce the long-term disability caused by childhood brain tumours.

Lil Davies suffered from severe headaches, loss of mobility and personality changes for months before she was diagnosed with a brain tumour.

Desperate mum Amanda finally took Lil to her local accident and emergency department in August 2014. She told staff the then three-year-old had fallen and banged her head at home, in order to secure the brain scan she was convinced Lil needed.

The scan revealed a cancerous brain tumour the size of a lemon.

Layla-mae Cummings was diagnosed with a brain tumour in 2013 after more than a year of health problems including seizures, memory loss, vomiting, headaches and blurred vision.

A CT scan showed nothing obviously wrong and doctors suggested she had an infection in her brain.

Layla-mae Cummings

However, her health continued to deteriorate. Eventually, after 12 months and three cancelled appointments, Layla-mae had an MRI scan at the Noah's Ark Children's Hospital in Cardiff. The scan revealed a brain tumour.

The relaunched HeadSmart campaign will focus on healthcare professionals, parents and teenagers in a bid to ensure young patients with possible brain tumour symptoms are referred for specialist help as quickly as possible.

Hayley Epps, campaign manager for The Brain Tumour Charity, said: "Brain tumours kill more children in the UK than any other type of cancer. HeadSmart has two aims: to save lives and reduce long-term disability by bringing down diagnosis times.

"Relaunching the campaign will help us to achieve those goals by alerting more healthcare professionals, parents and young people to the signs and symptoms of the disease.

"What happened to Lil and to Layla-mae shows very clearly why HeadSmart is so important. We are very grateful to both families for their support."

Following her diagnosis, Lil, now five, had surgery to remove the tumour and then proton beam therapy in the US. She is monitored regularly to check for any signs that the tumour is regrowing but scans so far have been clear.

Layla-mae also had surgery to remove her tumour but a follow-up scan in April last year showed more abnormal tissue in her brain.

Although the tumour is believed to be slow-growing, she may need further treatment or surgery.

HeadSmart was formally relaunched last week at the Royal College of General Practitioners in London, where doctors will take part in a workshop to learn about the signs and symptoms of childhood brain tumours.

'Clean streets should be our focus not fines' says councillor

PLAID CYMRU councillor Ian Johnson says that street-cleaning to pick up and remove litter is more important than a deterrent to stop people dropping rubbish.

He was speaking after a question to full council which showed that 50 fixed penalty notices were given out by new environmental enforcement company 3GS in the first month of action in October 2016, and recent news stories where local businesses have been fined for not locking their commercial rubbish bins.

Of the first 50 fines, 41 were given for dropping cigarette waste, five for general litter, one for unauthorised distribution of free matter and three for spitting.

A previous environmental enforcement company, XFOR, was heavily criticised in 2012-13 for its concentration on fining smokers.

Coun Johnson, who represents the centre of Barry, said: "This is the second time that the Vale Council has introduced a private environmental enforcement company to help keep our streets clean, and once again it is not having the effect we hoped.

"While a deterrent will make some people think twice about dropping a wrapper or stubbing out a cigarette on the floor, this doesn't really make a huge difference to the cleanliness of our towns.

"Spitting isn't nice but fining people for it is hardly going to stop our dog mess problem.

"Clean streets – free of litter and dog mess – should be our focus, not fines. The Vale Council should invest in more street-cleaners to keep the streets tidy and to clean up dog fouling problems on residential streets."

'New businesses need more support'

NEW business start-ups in the Vale should be given more help and support, said Welsh Conservative Leader Andrew RT Davies AM, after reports that the number of new businesses starting up in Wales had fallen by 26 per cent over the past five years.

The South Wales Central regional AM stated that a number of factors, including the recent rises in business rates that caused particular issues in Cowbridge, had contributed to the problem.

While he welcomed the support announced by the Welsh Government just before Christmas, he pointed out that businesses still awaited permanent relief, and that other barriers facing new start-ups should be removed.

MORE WELSH PLEASE? – Pilot scheme for small local businesses

ENCOURAGING and facilitating small businesses in Wales to use more Welsh means that the language is seen and heard more in our communities.

Menter Bro Morgannwg, in partnership with Welsh Government, is implementing a new pilot scheme in the Vale to encourage businesses to see the value of bilingualism and help to incorporate Welsh into their businesses.

The scheme also provides an opportunity to raise awareness of the importance of the language as something that can be used by customers and increasing 'natural goodwill' in the community.

The scheme, free to participating businesses, will work with individuals and businesses to prepare a profile to identify requirements and offer practical support and advice on how to introduce or increase provision.

If you, or your business, would like to know more about the scheme or to sign up, contact Ffion Rhisiart on 029 2068 9888 / ffion@menterbromorgannwg.cymru

Vale of Glamorgan Football League news round-up

IN a weather-affected few days only a handful of games were played in the Vale this past weekend.

We start in the Supporters Cup and the game of the day saw Barry Belgrade host league leaders Barry Athletic B.

The match lived up to the hype in an enthralling contest that could have gone either way. 90 minutes couldn't separate the teams but Athletic B found a winner in extra time to progress, Linford Harris notching both of Athletic B's goals.

Cadoxton Athletic also advanced over Cardiff Airport to make the quarter final.

In the Dockers Cup Barry Saints edged out St Athan B in an 11 goal thriller, 6-5; Joe Matthews, Arturs Zomerovskis, Chris Hegarty, Rhys Hocking plus two own goals finding the net for Barry Saints with Josh Howells (2), Craig Howells, Alex Harry and Colin George responding for St Athan B.

In the ASRS Cup holders Dinas Powys Athletic crashed out at the first hurdle with high-flying Cowbridge Town going through at their expense.

The draws were made for the three divisional cups on Saturday evening, ties to be played on February 11.

In the ASRS Cup, Cowbridge host Masons Moving Group, Rhoose take on Tynewydd, Barry Athletic play the winners of the rearranged Penarth vs Vale United game and St Athan will welcome Island Marine.

In the Supporters Cup Dockers host Barry Athletic B, Cadoxton Athletic await the winners of the postponed Pumas vs Cogan, Glenbrook play SP Billy and Sully welcome Cadoxton Barry.

The Dockers Cup quarter-finals line up with Island Marine B hosting Penarth B, FC Pumas B play Rhoose B, league leaders Cadoxton Imps take on BVFC and finally Barry Saints will face Barry Albion.

Only one league game was played, and Rhoose extended their excellent winning streak with an exciting 5-4 victory over Barry Athletic; that's six wins on the bounce for Rhoose as they go fourth. Notably for Athletic, Nathan Williams bagged himself a hat trick.

This week sees a full round of league fixtures, weather permitting, with the games of the day in each division looking like being Cowbridge vs Rhoose in the Premier League, Barry Athletic B hosting Cogan in the First Division and Barry Saints playing Island Marine B in the Second Division.

If anyone wants their goalscorers included in the report, email hyweldark@hotmail.co.uk by the day after the game.

Proud Priory partnership for Barry RFC under-14s!

Blast from the past – 1997

IN this week's Blast From The Past, Pip Jones lands her 100th winner on David Brace's Lucky Ole Son and Ian Prichard saddles his first winner with Kristal Haze.

Under the heading 'Lucky Ole Son shines brightly to earn Pip her 100th winner', I reported that: "Wales' leading lady rider Pip Jones notched-up her 100th point-to-point winner at the Carmarthenshire Hunt Steeplechases on Sunday when winning the ladies' open race on 10-year-old Lucky Ole Son.

"Lucky Ole Son, who was the second leg of a double for Jones, scored by two lengths from Kinloch Gale.

"Jones also took the confined on Conna Moss and division three of the maiden on Keep Flowing, and all three are owned and trained by Bridgend businessman David Brace."

Jones, aged 27, from Rudry, who rode her first winner in her first ride in 1986, has also ridden 29 winners under Rules.

Reigning national champion Jamie Jukes, who landed a double at Larkhill on Saturday, brought his season's tally of wins to 11 when winning the restricted open on Radio Days and the maiden (division one) on Hollow Sound.

Both are owned by Cardiff's David Sprout and trained by Bert Lavis of Simpson Cross.

Jukes was badly bruised after falling from Castlemorris in division two of the maiden won by Phil Dando's Kristal Haze.

Ridden by Phil Williams, Kristal Haze is trained by Ian Prichard who was saddling his first winner.

Pony-sized Touch N Pass, ridden by Bridgend butcher Jon Tudor, won the men's open by six lengths from Northern Bluff despite making a mistake at the last.

Closest finish of the day came in division four of the maiden when John Day's She Goes, well ridden by Newport's Andrew Price, withheld the strong challenge of Bobbie's Girl.

I also revealed that: "This season the Pentyrch and the Gelligaer Farmers will hold their meetings over a new course at Redlands Park Farm, Bonvilston, on land owned by former point-to-point rider Tudor Harris. The course is said to be fairly flat one of two circuits and racegoers will be able to view the races from the centre of the track. However, it won't be the first time that point-to-points have taken place in the area."

For back in 1903, the Glamorgan Hunt held a point-to-point in fields not far from the Aubrey Arms and some of the riders wore hunting costume.

In 1904, Fred Williams, father of Evan Williams who won the 1937 Grand National on Royal Mail, won the farmers' race there on Wynstay.

A four-a-side team race between officers of the Glamorgan Imperial Yeomanry and officers of the Royal Monmouthshire Royal Engineers took place there in 1906, which resulted in a tie.

Bonvilston was also the scene of the Glamorgan Hunt fixture in 1906 when the races were held at Caemain Farm and again in 1914 when Captain Darby Rogers, whose son John many years later went on to train Derby winners Hard Ridden and Santa Claus, won on a horse called Chellow.

Brian Lee's latest book Racing Rogues – The Scams, Scandals and Gambles of Horse Racing in Wales, published by St David's Press, is according to the Racing Post: "A cracking read which lifts the lid on notorious Welsh gambles with many engrossing episodes with such colourful characters from the past such as Gomer Charles, Benny Jacobs and John Lovell."

Housebuilder's 'substantial investment'

AS 2017 gets under way, Barratt Homes has revealed that it built 608 homes in South Wales during the past year and contributed £7.4m to communities where it is building new homes.

The figures form part of the company's socio-economic footprint which covers Barratt Homes and David Wilson Homes and indicate how much the local economy has benefitted from the new housing.

While the company itself has made more than £7 million of contributions to councils and for infrastructure and affordable housing for local people, it also calculates that it supported 1,300 jobs directly and indirectly and employs 22 graduates, apprentices and trainees.

MYSTERY FOOTBALL LINE-UP OF 1956 SEASON IS REVEALED THANKS TO GEM READERS

GEM reader Neil Holmes appealed for information about this photograph of a local Barry football team, Kerry Rovers, which was taken in 1956. His brother, John, turned out for the club in the 1950s and Neil wanted to identify the other team members who played with John. His brother is the second person from the right in the back row. At the time Kerry Rovers was managed by Tommy Davies, who also doubled as secretary.

GEM readers have come up trumps with the full lineup. Back row (left to right) Joe Patterson, Colin Downes (right back), Eric Attwood (full back), Ben Allport (goalkeeper), Gerry Nash (full back), Denis Marle (centre half), John Holmes (left half), Arthur Davis. Front row (left to right): Colin Proctor (right wing), John Cripps (inside right), Frank Mitchell (centre forward), Granville Davies (inside left), Malcolm Morgan (left wing).

The mascot was Philip Davis. Reserves, not shown were David Griffiths and Glyn Attwood.

Capturing memories at Barry Island Primary School

DURING the week commencing January 9 Barry Island Primary School and the Island's History Society invited the local community into school to view memorabilia and old photographs.

Over 100 visitors attended the special occasion. Guests reminisced and retold stories of events during the war.

It was a pleasure for past pupils to reunite as they discovered that they hadn't seen each other since leaving the school.

Polly Davies, leader of literacy, commented: "It was fantastic to observe the children engaged in so many oral, reading and writing opportunities linked to their local area. Children were immersed in a wealth of resources which stimulated and enthused a buzz of history and enquiry into the past."

The school would like to thank the history society for their support and wonderful displays. In addition, the school would like to thank all the guests for sharing their special memories.

The spirit of Christmas felt in Penarth

THROUGH The GEM, I would like to extend our heartfelt gratitude to all those who made the Penarth Churches Christmas Day Luncheon at Trinity Methodist Church such a success this year.

The day would not have been possible without the generosity of individuals giving up part of their Christmas Day to make the occasion special for those who would otherwise be spending it alone.

Guests were treated to a turkey dinner and Christmas pudding, and joined in with carols and a raffle, and then went home with gifts, full of festive cheer.

We were blessed with a number of new volunteers in addition to a few loyal helpers who have given their time so generously over the years.

Special thanks go to Rev Phyl Fanning, Anne Acton and Linda Harrison, all the drivers, waiters, washer-uppers, those who helped set up on Christmas Eve, Thompson's the Butchers and to all those who donated trifles, Christmas crackers, gifts and financial contributions.

Love and thanks to you all!

Ceri-Lou Newman,
Trinity Methodist Church, Penarth

Vigilant leisure centre worker may have foiled a 'serious crime'

A VALE Council employee has been praised for his vigilance after reporting a suspected theft at Colcot Sports Centre to the police.

Nathan Connell heard noises coming from behind a locked changing-room door shortly after a football team had left to play their match.

He was also suspicious of an occupied car with its engine running in the car park.

After confronting a man who had exited through the changing room fire door, Nathan made a note of the car registration number he departed in.

Later, it was revealed items had been taken from the football team, though a bag containing more of their belongings had been left inside the centre.

The police are hopeful of making an arrest in relation to the incident meaning Nathan might well have foiled a serious crime.

Local policing inspector Robert Miles said: "This was an excellent response by the member of staff who acted as soon as his suspicions arose. He spoke to the suspects and took details of the vehicle registration.

"We are continuing our investigations, have identified a suspect and are confident that we will be able to make an arrest."

Gwyn John congratulates Colcot Sports Centre worker Nathan Connell, who reported a suspected left to police.

Nathan explained what he believes happened and why his suspicions were aroused.

"It looks like the person responsible entered through the fire door and hid in the toilets until everyone went to play the match then came out.

"I went outside and a car had its engine running and was causing an obstruction. The woman inside said she was waiting for her partner, who had gone in to meet a friend.

"I could hear noises coming from inside the locked room.

"Eventually, I confronted the person and asked what he was doing. He said he'd got locked in by accident.

"That could well have been true, so there wasn't much I could do. He came out of the centre into the car park and the car drove away. Then we found out that the changing room door had been forced open.

"I made a note of the car registration number and later passed that on to the police.

"One of the guys who played for the team said he was really grateful because afterwards they found a bag containing clothes and trainers belonging to the players.

"They had been left in the centre. If they'd been taken things could have been much worse."

Coun Gwyn John, cabinet member for leisure services, said: "Nathan's quick-thinking has enabled the police to promptly address this unfortunate situation.

"He has clearly prevented this incident from being far worse than it could have been.

"It is important that community activities such as football be played in a safe, secure environment and members of staff like Nathan make a significant contribution to ensuring this is the case."

Jeffrey is a Penarth speaker

PENARTH Men's Christian Fellowship has a star speaker at its meeting on January 26 at Elfed Avenue United Church in Penarth.

Jeffrey Howard, conductor of the Treorchy Male Voice Choir is a multi-talented musician; he has played a piano concerto in the Royal Albert Hall and has toured America as an organist.

The PMCF has met fortnightly in Elfed Avenue Church for many years with a programme of interesting speakers, but this is to be an open meeting.

Public angry with 'development at any cost' claims Plaid

THE direction taken by the Vale Council regarding major redevelopments must be urgently reviewed following the dramatic rejection of planning schemes in both Barry and Penarth, Plaid Cymru has claimed.

The party says councillors on the planning committee dramatically rejected a bid to turn a former church in Windsor Road, Barry, into dozens of flats, agreeing with the massive local opposition.

The fundamental objection was that there was no provision of on-site parking and there were road safety concerns.

At Northcliff, Penarth, one of the last major sites available for development overlooking Cardiff Bay, permission to build was rejected due to the impact of blocks of flats on the prominent headland site.

Nic Hodges, a Plaid member of the planning committee said: "The council must wake up to the anger felt by the public who see a system biased in favour of development at any cost.

"There is a growing feeling that planning in the Vale is unresponsive to the views of the public.

"There is a growing level of arrogance displayed to residents by the council," he added.

Barry Library staff at their 10-year anniversary celebrations were joined by Vale Council Leader Neil Moore (left).

Barry Library celebrates a decade of success

MEMBERS of the public joined library staff and others to mark the 10th anniversary of Barry Library with a variety of events last weekend.

On Friday, old photographs of Barry were on show, there was a photographic challenge and a display of the most borrowed books, while people had the opportunity to sign up for 'colouring', crochet and reading groups.

A day later, storytellers entertained visitors, who could also attend a family history 'drop-in surgery' and enjoy craft-making, while there was a performance from Barry Male Voice Choir.

There was also a host of other activities taking place across the two days.

Vale Council Leader Neil Moore was among those taking part.

He said: "I can't believe it's been 10 years, because I remember vividly the day we opened the library and there are celebration pictures on the walls here today to remind us of what the library and old council offices looked like through the ages.

"I think it's a wonderful place to visit and now the learning centre upstairs only adds to the experience that everyone has.

"There are photographs of when this place was boarded up. I remember it very well, because I was working in Holton Road, and I watched the new civic offices being built, which resulted in this building closing down.

"I also remember coming here with my daughter when she was three years old, who is now old enough to have her own child and protesting about the demise of the building.

"We wanted this place open not for political gain, but to ensure the building was brought back into community use. We said "you can't just leave an iconic building like this empty!"

"I recall the disagreements we had back then. As Max Boyce used to say 'the pitheads baths is a supermarket now,' and we nearly had a supermarket here, too.

"It was only the tenacity of some of us at the council and like-minded people from the community that prevented that happening. This facility is testament to people working together to make something a success.

"This building has become iconic so all I can say is 'thank you to all the staff, you've done an amazing job'. I'd also like to thank the library members and other visitors who borrow books, CDs, DVDs and make use of all the facilities on offer. Thank you to everyone, without you it wouldn't be a success."

Coun Lis Burnett, Vale deputy leader, said: "The pace of change in our lives has been dramatic and sometimes it's not comfortable. Now, an awful lot of information is consumed digitally and people are just as likely to read their newspapers or novels on buses on their way to work or in coffee shops, and people panic if they misplace their smartphone.

"However, that doesn't mean that libraries have become less important. Our libraries are changing and if we look at Barry Library, just in the last few years, with all the amazing activities, there's always something going on.

"As a council, if we're going to build strong communities with bright futures, which is what our corporate vision is, I'd argue that libraries are even more important. They need to be a focal point within our communities.

"Our libraries are constantly evolving to meet the needs of modern lives, but the one thing that doesn't change is the commitment, creativity and absolute passion of our staff.

"That is the one constant within the libraries. I'd like to add my thanks to that of the Leader's, to all the staff who work so hard.

"Now we've seen the addition of the learning centre, access to IT facilities, the imminent arrival of increased opening hours, hopefully more and more people will use the library and realise just what an amazing resource it is."

First female Bishop in Wales to be ordained on Saturday

HISTORY will be made on Saturday when Wales' first female bishop is consecrated at Llandaff Cathedral.

Rev Canon Joanna Penberthy.

Reverend Canon Joanna Penberthy was elected as the 129th Bishop of St David's in Pembrokeshire by members of the Electoral College in November.

It was the first opportunity for a woman to be elected as a bishop following the Church's decision in 2013 to enable the ordination of female bishops.

She will be consecrated by the Archbishop of Wales, Dr Barry Morgan, with the five other Welsh bishops, and the Archbishop will give the address.

Dr Morgan, who retires on January 31 said: "This is an historic occasion for the Church in Wales, as well as being a hugely significant moment for Canon Joanna. It is marvellous that it is possible for us to appoint women as well as men to all three Orders of ministry and to regard that as now being the norm.

"What matters is not gender, but suitability, character, gifts – and that was why Joanna was elected as bishop.

"I hope everyone will celebrate with us and support Joanna and pray for her as she embarks on this next stage in her ministry."

Canon Jo, who was previously Rector of Glan Ithon in the diocese of Swansea and Brecon, said: "While being made Bishop is awe inspiring, I am very much looking forward to joining the people of St David's diocese, as we seek to live out and share our faith in the risen Christ."

The consecration service, which is ticket only due to space restrictions, starts at 11am and Bishop Joanna will be enthroned at St David's Cathedral on February 11.

Born in Swansea, she grew up in Cardiff and was educated at Cardiff High School and Newnham College, Cambridge. She trained for the ministry at St John's College, Nottingham and Cranmer Hall, Durham.

Made a deaconess in 1984 and ordained as a deacon in 1987 Canon Jo was among the first women ordained as priests in Wales in 1997.

She is married to Reverend Adrian Penberthy and they have four grown-up children and one grandchild. Her interests include quantum physics (currently studying for a PhD), reading and bird-watching.

Work to start on road junction?

THE Vale Council is to consult on a proposal to install double yellow lines at the junction of Court Road and Chilcote Street in Barry to improve visibility and make the junction safer for both pedestrians and vehicles.

The scheme is backed by Coun Richard Bertin (Court ward) who said: "This proposal will make this junction much safer and will reduce the potential for any future accidents at this spot."

How the phenomenal growth of Barry attracted new professions to the town

LOCAL historian LAURIE OWEN is fascinated by the history of Barry – in particular the remarkable growth in population when the docks were built.

In this installment, he looks at how one business grew, in response to the increasing numbers of residents.

Part 1: New cemetery, 1889

After the death of Prince Albert in 1861, it was widely reported that people had become more interested in the whole aspect of death and even the poorest saved their pennies for a proper send-off.

WORK began on building Barry Docks in 1884, and with 3,000 'navvies' and other trades working day and night, the Burial Board realised that more space was urgently needed because Merthyr Dovan and Cadoxton churchyards were full, with little space at St Nicholas Church.

So in 1889 the United Parishes of Cadoxton, Barry and Merthyr Dovan opened the New Cemetery, at a cost of £800 to accommodate 2,000 graves. Over the next few years, they paid £667 for a further five acres of land and then 10 years later, borrowed £5,500 for another 15 acres, proving their early decision to have been well-founded.

In 1892 Somerset man Frank Small of 13 Romilly Road, a master builder with a good record, erected the chapel in the new cemetery for £980. It was recorded that various denominations now wanted their own areas and in 1897, after some controversy, the Bishop of Llandaff consecrated a portion of land declaring it "Church of England property".

In 1890, the Barry Dock News printed a strongly-worded letter from Gertrude Jenner of the Wenvoe Castle Estate regarding the initial purchase of some of their land for the cemetery, complaining that she had not been informed, yet an 1889 deed of conveyance for purchase of the said land for £400 should surely have explained that to her.

This lady was often in the news and even judges at the High Court in London were well acquainted with her.

In financial affairs, the Burial Board had to decide whether to reduce the cost of burials of stillborn babies and children under 12 months old, from six to five shillings. The former could be placed in a common grave but the latter needed a full grave and as there were many of the latter dying, the loss of revenue would be considerable.

At another meeting it was agreed that graves had to be a depth of nine feet, which could hold three bodies with one foot between them and still allow three feet below the surface. Although these reports may seem harsh through 21st century eyes, the numbers of people now living and dying in the town brought up issues which the authorities had not needed to discuss before.

An article in 1893 offered hope of better times, when a steady decrease in the number of paupers in south Wales was announced. In 1870 there were 44 paupers per 1,000 inhabitants but by 1893 this number was down to 23, with special mention given to the increase in Friendly Societies.

The annual records of Dr George Neale the first Medical Officer of Health, appointed in 1888, showed that the population increased from 500 before work on the docks began to 10,500 when they opened five years later, increasing to an astonishing 31,436 by 1899.

Over the period from 1888 to 1899, the number of children who died before their 15th birthday increased gradually from 14 each year to 339, making a total of 2,097 young people.

In Charles Dickens' era, half of all inmates in the workhouse were children, but thankfully towards the late 1890s there was a movement to open 'scattered or cottage homes', to separate the child paupers from the adults. These consisted of single homes or a group on a site with a school, church and sports nearby, with a 'foster mother' to supervise and look after them.

They generally had a uniform and led a disciplined life but they were given basic schooling, with the boys learning a trade and the girls prepared for domestic service.

In 1899 it was reported by the Friendly Societies and the Barry Nursing Association that the housing of 'indoor' pauper children cost 7/6d per head per week.

In 1902 the Board of Guardians opened two scattered homes at 51 and 53 Kenilworth Road, near to schools and churches, to house 24 children with Miss Robins and Miss Townsend as foster mothers. This brought the total now to 22 homes caring for 288 children and it was hoped that the neighbours would play their part in helping these youngsters to settle in.

This whole experience of dealing with many more deaths not only led to the introduction of new undertakers, but it also alerted some young men that there would be a need for sculptors, with so many people now able to afford to honour their dead family members.

Frederick Thomas Mossford (1867-1949) was born in Crewe and was destined to be a sculptor from an early age, as his father William had been a master mason employer since the 1860s.

Frederick married Lucy Annie Fairbairn in 1887 and together with son Joseph, in 1891 they were living in Crewe with his widowed mother-in-law Ellen and her son and daughter Frank and Clara.

He was by now a stonemason, but tragedy struck within weeks of the census, when his young wife Lucy died at just 29 years of age.

Two years later Frederick married Lucy's younger sister Clara Elle and moved to Newbury, Berkshire where they had their first son Norman. To enhance his knowledge of his trade and learn new ideas, the next five years were spent in America, with Phyllis, Dorothy and Frank being born in Oregon, Carson City and Reno, Nevada, before returning to Newtown, Montgomeryshire by 1901.

In 1903, this man of means came bounding into Barry with a bang by means of an advert in the Barry Dock News, which informed the public that he was now the owner of the business of sculptor Thomas Lloyd, whose works were opposite the cemetery.

With an impressive picture of his site in Cardiff, he announced that the Mossford name was known for its work as monumental masons for over a century and his motto was: 'Best of material, beauty, symmetry and appropriate design with most artistic carving'.

As soon as the family moved into their new home, the couple engaged in the social and commercial activity in the town. Clara organised a Christmas charity in December 1905 asking for private donations to be sent to their home at 'Bella Vista', Tynewydd Road, with the money to be given to 'deserving causes'.

To encourage citizens, their contributions would be revealed in the Barry Dock News and she gave a list of some early donors, beginning with Mr/Mrs Mossford £20, Culley's Hotel and HR Paul one guinea each, with amounts lessening as the list continued.

One of Frederick's first assignments was to construct the memorial stone, made of Sicilian marble, for the new Masonic Hall in Broad Street. In 1905 Bro Mossford presented his work to Lord Llangattock for the laying ceremony in front of the many honoured guests and members.

Two years later he donated a drinking fountain with a trough for the dogs made of granite from the area around Balmoral Castle, which would go in front of the new public offices in Holton Road. On this occasion, he received glowing tributes as the originator of his kind of work in the area and built up one of the largest businesses in Wales, receiving orders from 'John O'Groats to the Isle of Wight'.

Other gifts would include a handsome baptismal font to St Helen's Catholic Church and it surely came as no surprise when he was elected a councillor, working on several committees in the town.

In 1907, he was privileged to preside over the annual meeting of the National Association of Monumental Masons and Sculptors of Great Britain, which was held in London.

The following year he was chairman of the local Conservative Association and the Chrysanthemum Society, and records show he was a keen billiards player.

The couple had arrived from Newtown with seven children, setting up home at Bella Vista, Tynewydd Road; then quickly added another two sons and daughters, so that by the census of 1911 they certainly needed a young servant to manage the children, aged from one to 17.

A 1916 story in the press under the heading 'Mrs Grundy's Jottings', described how son Frank had been in active service for almost two years and was still only 17, and how two other sons were also in the army, as well as 14 employees.

When Frederick died in 1949 at Newport Road, Cardiff he left his estate to sons Norman and Clive who, as sculptors, would surely have been running the business.

James Payne (1886-1949) was born in Cardiff and following the death of his mother Harriet in 1900, was living with his father Arthur a year later at 36 Jewel Street.

Arthur was a coal trimmer with three children: James, Charles and Gladys, and being recently widowed had a young domestic servant living with them.

In 1902 Arthur married a Mary Louisa Davies and they had a daughter, Elsie May, three years later. James married Margaret Effie Vincent in 1909 and two years later they were still at Jewel Street with baby Edith Harriet and sharing the home with Arthur and his new family.

With the extra responsibility, James made the bold decision to set up his own business as a monumental mason/sculptor at just 23 years of age. His only real competitor was Frederick Mossford, who as we have seen had already made his reputation in town, so James embarked on a series of press adverts for the whole of 1909 and subsequent years.

The previous year, James had been entrusted to erect the Italian grey granite sarcophagus in Porthkerry churchyard in memory of Lord and Lady Romilly, which incidentally can still be seen today. This surely spoke volumes for the quality of his work and would have been a great boost to the launch of his business.

Initially his works were in Lower Morel Street before moving to a better site on the junction of Cemetery/Barry Road. An interesting story told how in 1922, the Barry sculptor John Payne restored the base of a medieval cross in Cadoxton churchyard and it was this son who was listed in Kelly's 1923 directory as a sculptor at 40 Jewel Street.

When James died in hospital in 1949, he was still living at number 36 Jewel Street.

William Evans (1894-unknown) was born in Barry to parents Thomas and Elizabeth, who came to 74 Station Street from the Rhondda by 1891.

His father was a coal trimmer and by 1901 they were living at 63 Kingsland Crescent with his elder brothers David and Jenkin and Thomas's cousin and niece Moses and Sarah David.

At the age of 17 William was an apprentice sculptor, quite possibly with either Frederick Mossford or James Payne, but here was another young man with ambition, because just four years later he was trading as 'W Evans & Co' at 21 years of age, with his works just outside the cemetery gates.

A year prior to this, at the opening of the new enlarged chapel for the Tabernacle Welsh Congregational he donated a fine white marble tablet, made in his leisure time. As a young member, it was a fine gesture and would have done no harm to his reputation.

Unfortunately for William, the war interrupted his plans and he was enlisted for several years before returning in 1919 to continue building his fledgling business. His continual series of adverts told readers that he was back, having been discharged from HM Forces, and he was eager to resume the good work.

He began by designing and erecting two tablets in memory of fallen comrades, for the Bethel Baptist and the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapels, which were described as being of 'excellent design and workmanship'.

W Evans & Co were still at Cemetery Road in 1923.

It was interesting that in 1909, when James Payne began his extensive advertising campaign listing his full details, Frederick's advert just said 'FT Mossford, Sculptor', emphasising to everyone that "you know who I am, where I am and what I do".

Part 2 will feature the men who set up as undertakers to satisfy the demand and were required to tender each year for the burial of the 'pauper children' at the cheapest price.

Transfer date for Community Library

RHOOSE Community Library is registered with the Charity Commission and was set up in readiness to take over the running of Rhoose Library.

The Vale of Glamorgan Council had previously decided that it would be closed unless a community group was ready to take over the library.

Legal actions have been mounted to prevent the Vale Council going forward with their plans in the hope that they would continue to provide a council-run library service in Rhoose.

Unfortunately, legal action has failed, which means the only realistic option to maintain a library in Rhoose is for it to be transferred to the Rhoose Community Library.

A dedicated team of people have volunteered their time and effort in preparing to be ready for this outcome.

Trustees of the Rhoose Community Library and the Vale Council have agreed that the transfer date will be February 1.

Both parties will enter into a 99-year lease for a peppercorn rent and a Service Level agreement setting out what is expected of them.

"We already have over 20 trained and committed volunteers who are already helping at the library and we have the support of a peripatetic librarian employed by the Vale Council for 15 hours a week.

"I am very proud of all those people who have worked hard to prepare and put us in the position to maintain a library for Rhoose.

"We want to make Rhoose Community Library a success and plan to expand the current services offered," said Coun Jeff James, chairman of the trustees.

MP'S CALL OVER DENTAL CONCERNS IN BARRY

CONCERN over shortage of dental provision in Barry has prompted Vale MP Alun Cairns to write to the Cardiff and Vale Health board.

He has asked for NHS dental provision, "measured in 'Units of Dental Administration' or UDAs, to be shared among a greater number of practices to maximise capacity."

Mr Cairns had asked local people to get in touch with him on their experiences of trying to find an NHS dentist and flagged this up to the health board.

He took up the issue following a visit to the new Waterfront Dental Surgery in Barry.

Mr Cairns said: "The practitioner, Dr Price, explained that there is a lack of capacity in Barry's established dental surgeries for treatment on the NHS because these surgeries are stretched to capacity with NHS and private patients.

"He believes that a greater number of NHS patients could be treated across Barry if NHS treatment options were available in a greater number of practices."

Dr Price said, "We have been very busy since opening the new practice in Barry, there is great local demand for dental services here. There is also strong demand for treatment on the NHS, which we would love to provide but are currently prevented from doing so.

"There is a lack of capacity for NHS dental treatment in Barry and we want to be part of the solution and help and many local people as possible."

Barry chess club's busy week

THIS week we were busier with players from the Barry Chess Club taking part in the South Wales New Year Congress, the Shropshire Open and also two matches in the East Glamorgan Chess league.

Both the Congress and the Open were events played over Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday with five rounds of play.

In the Shropshire Open Lee Davis took part. Whilst he only earned two points from his five games he did manage a draw against FM Andrew Horton who is rated at 2394 in the first round.

In the Congress there were a quite a few Barry players taking part. Mark and Tom Cooke played in the Major Section while Nigel Ralphs, Sam Jukes, Matthew Parry and Stephen Bonutto took part in the Open Section.

Amazingly Mark, Sam and Matthew all ended the weekend with 2.5 points to finish in mid table in their respective sections.

Stephen Bonutto was one of the lower ranked players in the Open Section so to claim three draws and earn a further 11 rating points was no mean feat.

Nigel finished with three wins, a draw and a bye to earn four points.

He finished second in the Open Section behind Cardiff's Grzorz Toczek who won all 5 of his matches.

Tom also earned four points in the Major Section. Like Nigel he managed three wins, a draw and a bye. This meant he also finished as runner-up behind another Cardiff player, Ed Donovan who ended up with 4.5 points, a very respectable return for the Barry club.

In the league the Barry Bosons in division 1 played the Caerphilly Kings who were the only unbeaten team in all three divisions, were being the operative word as with wins for Matthew Parry and Matthew Davies supported by draws from Steve Cunliffe and Dave Parsons gave us a 3-2 victory.

Rhys Steele lost his 100 per cent record and was our only loser playing Ioan Rees.

In division 4 the Barry Gambits played the Cardiff Cavaliers. The Cavaliers had only picked up three draws from their first eight matches until now when they won the match by a score of 3.5-1.5. Our points came from a draw by Martin Ricketts and a win for John Rees.

Whilst the Quarks did not play this week, two of their relegation rivals met with the Nelson Griffins beating the St John's Neutrinos by a whitewash of 5-0.

This margin of victory has pushed the Griffins into the promotion race. The Quarks are 4.5 points from safety so need to earn some good victories soon.

The Barry Chess Club meets at 7.30pm each Monday at the West End Club. St. Nicholas Road, Barry CF62 6QY.

The club is open to players of all standards; whether you are interested in playing competitive chess or just the occasional friendly games.

New players are very welcome to just turn up on the night but if you contact one of the club members through the website we can explain what is happening on the night you have in mind, and arrange for someone to greet you on your arrival.

For more details visit our website at http://barrychessclub.yolasite.com.

Skiing honours for schoolgirl

AIMEE SMITH, a year-9 pupil at Cowbridge Comprehensive School, has been selected to train with Dragons ski team (Cardiff) in Champéry, Switzerland.

She will then have the opportunity to compete in the Welsh Alpine Championships during the week of January 21 – 28, representing Wales against competitors from elsewhere in the UK and Europe.

Under-14s' outstanding performance

THE score was 33-7 when Cowbridge RFC under-14s met Morriston last October at Morriston, with Cowbridge on the receiving end of a comprehensive stuffing by the unbeaten Swansea outfit.

In the visitors mind, they may have assumed they would be on for a repeat performance – how wrong they were.

Right from the kick off, Cowbridge ran the ball straight back with both sets of backs and forwards interplaying with solid direct running and deft offloads.

From a well positioned scrum just on the halfway, right wing Jakob Thiesen at pace, coming in between the scrum and outside half, took a perfectly weighted pass from scrum half Jack Riley and proceeded to side step and jink his way past four defenders.

He was still sidestepping when he was over the line, with the crowd urging him to touch the ball down – which he did, to give Cowbridge the perfect start and leave Morriston in no doubt they were now in a game.

Unfortunately, shortly after Cowbridge failed to clear their lines (the kicked ball holding up in the wind) the ball was gathered by Morriston with one of their backs running in a good try, close to the posts. The conversion was however, wide.

Further Cowbridge attack saw Morgan Thomas, Kofi Jones, Carwyn Harris and Iestyn Pithers running good lines, and cutting through the visitors' defence.

Within minutes, Cowbridge were back on the offensive, chasing down loose balls, and gaining a maul on the visitors 22. From here, the forward pressure caused the scrambling defence to fumble the ball which Will Clarke picked up, and drove strongly from 15 metres out, carrying two would be tacklers over the line to score. 10-5 to Cowbridge and half time shortly followed.

The second half was 35 minutes of solid defence by the home side. The visitors ran time and time again against Cowbridge and a score looked almost inevitable. It was nerve jangling but thrilling to watch.

During this period, all 15 of the home team made tackle after tackle and on two occasions, Morriston players crossed over the line, but were held-up by Ioan Davies and Luke Gregory.

On another occasion, a last gasp tackle by Carwyn Jones saved a certain try, when the attacker fumbled the ball, again, within two metres of the try line.

After this incident, there was a flare-up where members of both teams squared up to each other.

This, if anything, galvanised Cowbridge, with forwards such as Max Hall, Lucas Reid, Louis Decaux and skipper David Harris again running the ball and making hard, but invaluable yards.

During this period, the line speed of the Cowbridge backs in defence was impressive. On each occasion they were quick off the mark to nullify Morriston's attack.

On a couple of occasions, Cowbridge were able to kick and chase downfield and momentarily relieve the pressure, but essentially they spent most of the second half in their own 50 metres on defence duties.

With the last play of the match, it again looked a certainty that Morriston would score. Their big No 8 charged at Elis Greenwood (the smallest Cowbridge player on the pitch).

Elis did enough to slow the player down, and desperate corner flagging saw two tacklers haul him in to touch, just short of the line. The final whistle below. There was palpable relief and ecstasy!

This was one of the best games the under-14s have produced in a long time, and a perfect example of how to take a lead, defend it, and close out a game.

It was clearly evident in the last quarter that extra fitness sessions in the gym with specialist coach Ollie Trotman, paid dividends, as the Cowbridge players were far more mobile than their tiring opposition, and were able to cover the pitch and corner flag when needed.

The defensive tackling was, at times, text book, and again, due to the hard work the coaches have been putting in with the lads over the season.

Morriston have only lost twice in 13 games before this fixture, and had fielded a full-strength side. This really puts in to context, what a superb win it was for the under-14s.

Coaches and parents alike bristled with pride. Well done the under-14s – you are going from strength to strength, it was a proud parent day, and a victory that will be long remembered.

Wales Rugby League achieves two major awards

WALES Rugby League has achieved two major awards as it continues to build and improve the organisation.

The national governing body has been awarded the Level 3 Safeguarding Standard, as well as being awarded the highest grading in the Sport Wales Self Assurance process for the fourth year in a row.

The Safeguarding Standard was awarded jointly by Sport Wales and the NSPCC's Child Protection in Sport Unit. In gaining the Level 3 Standard, Wales Rugby League successfully presented to the panel and submitted evidence relating to 30 separate safeguarding criteria.

National Development manager Idris Evans is delighted that the two organisations have rubber stamped the work undertaken over the last 12 months to improve safety within rugby league in Wales.

He said: "We have worked very hard over the last 12 to 18 months to get where we are now - writing new and re-writing old policies, up-skilling staff and volunteers and sharing information with clubs so that children and young people can feel safe playing the sport of rugby league in Wales.

"We have had some great support from our team of safeguarding volunteers across Wales in Martin Roddy, Mark Jones and Mark Parry as well as the support from the Board through Chris Thair.

"To date, we are one of only a handful of sports in Wales to pass the Level 3 Standards and are ensuring we provide an environment where young players can feel safe, protected and listened to. It's about having the right resources in place to make people feel safe, but also being able to have procedures and practices ready if things do go wrong.

"We'd also like to thank the NSPCC and Sport Wales for their support in gaining this standard."

Anne Tiivas, the director of the Child Protection Sports Unit, said: "We would like to congratulate Wales Rugby League on achieving Level 3 of the Safeguarding Standards. We thank the organisation for your contribution to creating a safe environment for children and young people that works towards the framework for safeguarding and protecting children in and through sport in Wales."

The self-assurance process is undertaken annually by all the main sport's National Governing Bodies in the UK. Each NGB must upload evidence and explain how it meets 62 separate criteria on governance, financial management, human resources, policy, risk management and strategy.

The results of which show the Sports Councils whether the NGB is fit for purpose and safe enough to receive lottery and public funding. For the last four years, Wales Rugby League has received the highest grading of green.

Wales Rugby League CEO, Chris Thair, said: "Receiving awards and recognition from three separate bodies in the same month is testament to the fantastic work taking place within Wales. This journey is far from complete and there remains much work to be done but it does show we are on the right road.

"The self-assurance grading just reinforces our own beliefs. We have good governance, are led well, have small financial reserves alongside good financial management and a clear direction of travel. Most importantly we have some good people involved who will ensure this will continue into the future.

"The advanced safeguarding standard from the NSPCC means Wales Rugby League cover the two main aspects of safeguarding in a good manner. We are proactive to prevent issues taking place in the first place however will react in the most suitable way when required. The award shows rugby league in Wales is a good environment for children to be involved in.

"We wish to dedicate the Level 3 safeguarding award to ex-WRL board member Martin Roddy whose health is sadly suffering at the moment. Martin has been the long-time stalwart of safeguarding within our organisation and the main instigator in ensuring it is of the highest priority. We are extremely grateful.

"Finally, to hear John Kear say at a recent meeting and subsequently in a public interview with Sky Sports that Wales Rugby League is the best organisation he has been involved in speaks volumes for our culture and practices.

"As he stated, we are not a cash rich organisation and have much lower revenues than all the other nations and clubs John has coached in the past. These comments reflect how we always try to do things in the right way. with good values and practice; are supportive as a board and is a wonderful reflection upon the staff and players involved in the national team.

"They are a special bunch of people who will rightly go into 2017 Rugby League World Cup with a great deal of pride."

Wales Rugby League still have some remaining shirt sponsors for the World Cup and if by reading this, your business would like to hear more, then please email Chris Thair on chris.thair@walesrugbyleague.co.uk.

PENARTH HOCKEY CLUB ROUND-UP

PENARTH Hockey Club began the second half of the 2016-17 GoCrea8 League campaign in emphatic fashion with two important wins in the push for end-of-season promotion.

PENARTH 6, WEST WILTS 0

Fresh from the winter break Penarth kicked off the business half of the season with a home tie against West Wilts, looking to pick up from some fine pre-Christmas form that saw them move back into promotion contention.

Penarth looked the stronger team in the opening exchanges but struggled to find their rhythm or passing range with the low winter sun shining directly into their faces.

However, it was Penarth's quality that finally shone through as they broke the deadlock midway through the first half.

Captain Tom Haran took a sideline hit on halfway, passing down the line to Chris Baker who, having found himself in space on the base line, drove infield, committing the defence before slipping the ball to Tim Urlings at the back post to sweep home and continue his fine scoring run into 2017.

Penarth were now fully in control of the game and West Wilts, struggling to contain their opponents, deployed a half court press in an effort to stifle the home team's attacks.

The Bears remained undeterred and patient in possession, however, and switching the ball around the back would eventually present another opening as some fine build-up play found Laith El Khatib in the 'D' to smash home on his reverse and give Penarth a 2-0 lead at half-time.

After the break, and with the sun now out of their eyes, Penarth began to move to ball around with much more authority. With one crisp passing move working the ball into the 'D' and onto a West Wilts foot, the Bears ruthlessly dispatched the resulting short corner, Andy Willemite tipping in a Ben Croxall push pass at the back post to give the home team a commanding 3-0 lead.

With West Wilts resistance fading, the Bears went for the kill, smashing in another three to match their 6-0 victory in their opening day encounter.

Haran set up the fourth, reading a defensive clearance to step in front of his man and intercept the ball, before working his way to the baseline and firing the ball across goal to David Joyce, who had stolen half a yard on his marker and made no mistakes sweeping home.

Now pressing the visitors aggressively, it was Croxall's turn to intercept another failed clearance and smash his first reverse stick goal of the year high into the net.

Penarth would save the best until last however. Croxall, pulling the strings in midfield, sent a long cross-field aerial from the halfway line to find Willemite on the far right baseline.

The forward expertly controlled the ball with his first touch, before smashing it to the back post with his second, all in time for the arriving Joyce to sweep home his second – a goal which even draw applause from gracious opponents.

Penarth had plenty to be pleased about, with a good all-round performance, another clean sheet and news arriving of Firebrands' defeat, a result which moves the Vale side up into second place – and among the promotion places – in Conference North.

CARDIFF & MET F 2, PENARTH A 3

Penarth's second XI resumed their De Cymru 1 campaign away to old rivals Cardiff and Met 'F' and, having lost the opening day fixture between the sides, were well aware that this was going to be a difficult afternoon in what was a 'must win' game for the Bears' promotion hopes.

A quick start has been a regular occurrence for Penarth this season so it was surprising that they came out of the blocks slowly on this occasion. Cardiff were able to gain the upper hand and create several good chances which required some excellent saves by Simon Comfort, playing against his former club, to keep the game level.

Having survived the shaky start, however, Penarth found their feet and slowly changed the momentum of the game, gaining the ascendancy and settling into their game plan. Unlike their hosts, the Bears were also able to capitalise on their dominance and grabbed the first goal when a good move down the right wing saw Richard Baker smash in a cross which was dispatched by Phil Lane.

Penarth thought they had doubled their lead soon after, with James Kidby flicking in from the top of the 'D'. However, as the ball was on its way goalwards, the whistle was blown to give Penarth a penalty corner, which went unconverted.

The Vale side didn't have to wait too long for a second goal though, with Chris McCarthy ghosting in behind the Cardiff defence to slap home a through ball from Dave Stevens.

Although Penarth were on top, the experienced Cardiff side always looked dangerous and grabbed a goal back on the break. This only spurred the Bears on, however, and as they kept attacking, the two-goal lead was soon restored. This time, McCarthy turned provider to set up Tom Parkinson at the back post, the winger making a hard finish look very easy as he reacted to a deflection on the pass.

Penarth could and should have had a fourth before the break, as they passed the ball around quickly and confidently, arguably playing their best hockey of the season. However, ultimately failing to convert their chances kept Cardiff in the game despite the 3-1 interval scoreline.

The resumption saw a more organised home team take the field and, as they gained dominance over much of the half, Penarth were limited to counter attacks and became increasingly guilty of turning the ball over too quickly.

This put a lot of pressure on the Bears' rearguard, but the back four and defensive midfielder Andy Strong rebuffed the majority of attacks and, when the defences were breached, Simon Comfort remained in inspired form to keep the two-goal cushion until the last five minutes, when Cardiff grabbed a second to set up a tense end to the game.

The Bears dug deep to see the final moments, however, and gained a very valuable three points, made all the more important as second-placed Bridgend had lost earlier in the day, allowing Penarth to close back in on the promotion places ahead of their meeting with Whitchurch this weekend.

Penarth Hockey Club always welcomes new, old and returning players, umpires, supporters, friends and helpers regardless of age and ability. When the regular season resumes, training will take place on Wednesdays at Stanwell School, with the juniors on the pitch between 6.15pm and 7.15pm and the seniors between 7pm and 8.15pm.

Anyone interested in joining the club at senior or youth level can contactclub secretary Dave Stevens (d_stevens81@hotmail.co.uk) for further information.

Barry warm up for final with 3-1 win over Monmouth

LAST Saturday's Welsh League Division One programme saw Barry Town United fan favourite TJ Nagi make his 150th appearance for the club, a period in which the dynamic striker has scored on some 82 occasions.

Picture by Same Old Smith Photography and Video.

However, the fixture against Monmouth Town was particularly notable for another of Barry's forwards finding form, as striker James Dixon claimed a fine hat-trick in his team's 3-1 victory.

After Dixon had propelled the Town into a one goal lead with only a minute played, the marksman would seal another valuable three points with secondhalf brace, before a deflected effort gifted the Kingfishers a late consolation.

This result helped Barry into second in Welsh League Division One and Dixon, who had netted another three against Haverfordwest County in the Nathaniel MG Cup quarter-finals, will no doubt be dreaming of his own hat-trick of hat-tricks in Saturday's Nathaniel MG Cup final against The New Saints.

The New Saints arrive in Cardiff with a wealth of accomplished talent at their disposal, including Scottish international defender Steve Saunders and forward Alex Darlington, who netted twice for the club in their UEFA Europa League tie with Denmark's FC Midtjylland in the UEFA Europa League.

Nevertheless, in the likes of Nagi, Dixon, Cotterill, Fahiya and others, Barry have a host of players with the ability to make things happen, with manager Gavin Chesterfield also bringing in a number of new defensive options since last season's 5-2 Welsh Cup defeat.

Whatever the outcome this Saturday, Barry have excelled this season to reach the Nathaniel MG showpiece, eliminating two of the Welsh Premier League's top six sides on the way and recovering to win another gruelling tie in extra-time.

That being said, the chance to capture national silverware for the first time in over a decade has never been closer for the former four-time winners. After years of endeavour to return to this stage, can Barry bring the cup home?

Tickets for Barry vs TNS in the Nathaniel MG Cup final are £7 (adults) and £3 (concessions), with admission on the gate until capacity.

Tim lands 50-1 winner

POINT OF PRINCIPAL*, a four-year-old bay gelding trained by Aberthin's Tim Vaughan, was a 50-1 winner of the Betfred TV Newcomers Standard Open National Hunt Flat Race at Warwick last Saturday.

Well ridden by Alan Johns, who has been making a name for himself of late, Point Of Principal, who, like his 15 rivals, was seeing a racecourse for the first time, finished a length ahead of Paisley Park and those lucky punters who backed him on the tote were rewarded with odds of almost 65-1.

TOBEFAIR'S* SIX-TIMER

Debra Hamer, who hails from the Vale and who trains in west Wales, had one of her biggest successes to-date when earlier in the afternoon her seven-year-old brown gelding ToBeFair landed the £12,512 Pertemps Network Handicap Hurdle over three miles and two furlongs at odds of 9-1.

ToBeFair, partnered by Trevor Whelan who was riding his first winner since last November, was winning for the sixth time on the bounce and has now chalked up wins at Worcester and Chepstow on two occasions, once at Ffos Las and now Warwick.

Debra's husband Paul is a former Welsh champion point-to-point rider.

DOUBLE FOR EVAN DAVID

Llanharan's Evan David was in good form at the Dunstan Harriers Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases at Ampton last Sunday.

He landed the opening East Anglian Area Club Members race on Abbey Lane (evens) and 40 minutes or so later took the first division of the Open Maiden race on Tailspin (5-1) to complete a 12-1 double for trainer Andrew Pennock.

Evan came in for plenty of cheers when Tailspin got home by a neck from Pettistree.

In the mixed open race Roger Willcox's Lauberhorn finished third behind Arkrose and Trafficer.

On-form Barry ladies beat Penybont

TOP of the table Barry Town United Ladies looked to continue their recent excellent league form with a tough fixture away to third placed Penybont.

Both sides went into the game with only one defeat this season setting up an anticipated mouth-watering clash with both sides aiming for promotion.

Barry started the brighter of the two teams, creating a few half chances but nothing that came to fruition. It took until the 20th minute before the away side opened up their account in this tight contest. Tracey White went on a driving run through the midfield before laying of a pass to in-form Naomi Coulson who scored another fantastic goal from outside the box with a left footed shot that rocketed into the far corner. Barry 1-0 up and good value for their lead.

The goal did spark a reaction from the home side as they started to exert themselves on the game, however Barry still looked in control until a mistake proved costly.

Against the run of play, Barry gave possession away in defence allowing the Penybont striker to race through and place the ball past Barry goalkeeper Megan Davies for the equaliser.

A setback for the league leaders and the home side were duly lifted. However Barry composed themselves and just before half-time, a lovely move starting right from the back resulted in the visitors taking the lead for the second time in the match.

White again the dominant midfielder controlling the game put a lovely ball through for Stacey Ayling who found goal machine Luca Laky who tapped the ball home to give Barry a 2-1 lead at the break.

As the game progressed, Barry had the lion's share of possession but they could not covert a number of chances to put the game to bed.

Both the post and the crossbar were struck whilst the Penybont keeper was having a fine game. The home side failed to register a noteworthy effort in the second half meaning Barry held on to record a deserved and well-fought 2-1 away victory that keeps them top of the league for now.

The defensive unit of Meg Davies, Emma Thompson, Meg Bailey and Emily Mortimore were again outstanding with Barry only conceding nine goals in nine league games so far this season.

Captain Stevie Cook was again a calming influence on the squad and the ladies will now be looking to maintain their league title challenge with an away trip to Cascade this weekend.

Squad: 1. Megan Davies, 2. Emma Thompson, 3. Ellie Drew, 4. Tracey White, 5. Emily Mortimore, 6. Meg Bailey, 7. Naomi Coulson, 8. Stevie Cook (c), 9. Luca Laky, 10. Stacey Ayling, 11. Ffion Thomas, 12. Emily Hill, 14. Hannah Moger, 15. Georgia Peplow.

THE WALES SIX NATIONS 2017 SQUAD CONTAINS 'A FLAVOUR OF FRESHNESS'

STAND-IN head coach Robert Howley has unveiled a 36-strong Welsh squad for the upcoming Six Nations with a mix of familiar and not so familiar faces – including "a flavour of freshness" – with seven uncapped players getting a call-up.

"They are deserving of their opportunity and it will be exciting to see how they perform in the international set-up," an ebullient Howley told the waiting media on Tuesday.

"It is shaping up for another great Six Nations. We have the all-important carrot of Rugby World Cup seedings on the horizon, post-tournament, and that is an important target for us – especially as we welcome the world's Number 2 (England) and Number 4 (Ireland) ranked sides to the Principality Stadium over the coming months."

The newcomers include promising Wasps' open side Thomas Young (son of Dai) and Leicester's highly-rated pivot Owen Williams – making his long overdue arrival on the international scene.

On Owen Williams, Howley said: "He has been dogged with a few injuries that have kept him out. We have only picked three centres. With both Dan (Biggar) and Sam (Davies) in the squad, we need competition for places. I was impressed with Owen in the Munster game and the resilience he has shown. He has a slight injury at the moment, but, hopefully, he'll be available to play this weekend."

With skipper Sam Warburton having stepped down from the role, Howley went on: "It's an honour to select Alun Wyn Jones as captain. His vast experience as a player and a leader will help drive this squad forward and I believe he will flourish in the role.

"Sam has led Wales more times than any other captain and had great success in the role; however, we want him to concentrate on his game and be the best player he can be.

"We had conversations during and since the autumn with Sam; no player is guaranteed their place in an international team and we want Sam to be playing his very best rugby and he agrees this is the best way forward."

WALES SIX NATIONS SQUAD:

FORWARDS: Scott Andrews (Cardiff Blues), Nicky Smith (Ospreys), Rob Evans (Scarlets), Rhodri Jones (Ospreys), Tomas Francis (Exeter Chiefs), Samson Lee (Scarlets), Kristian Dacey (Cardiff Blues), Ken Owens (Scarlets), Scott Baldwin (Ospreys), Jake Ball (Scarlets), Alun Wyn Jones (Ospreys), Rory Thornton (Ospreys), Luke Charteris (Bath Rugby), Cory Hill (Newport Gwent Dragons), James King (Ospreys), Justin Tipuric (Ospreys), Olly Cracknell (Ospreys), Ross Moriarty (Gloucester Rugby), Taulupe Faletau (Bath Rugby), Sam Warburton (Cardiff Blues), Thomas Young (Wasps).

BACKS: Gareth Davies (Scarlets), Rhys Webb (Ospreys), Aled Davies (Scarlets), Dan Biggar (Ospreys), Sam Davies (Ospreys), Owen Williams (Leicester Tigers), Jamie Roberts (Harlequins), Jonathan Davies (Scarlets), Scott Williams (Scarlets), Ashton Hewitt (Newport Gwent Dragons), Alex Cuthbert (Cardiff Blues), Steffan Evans (Scarlets), George North (Northampton Saints), Liam Williams (Scarlets) Leigh Halfpenny (Toulon).

Wales kick off their Six Nations campaign aganst Italy in Rome on Sunday, February 5 at 3pm and the eventual shape of that team emerging from tbe bumper squad will be closely studied for signs of the promised 'change of direction'. Don John

Vale Schools hold on against Pontypridd

DESPITE the Met Office warnings of the end of days, Saturday saw the Vale on the road again, all be it only as far as Sardis Road for their Dewar Shield tie with Pontypridd Schools.

With the rain teeming down, the Vale kicked off attacking the clubhouse end. After a fairly even start the Vale took the lead through a Benji Williams try after a midfield break from captain Evan Lloyd.

He popped the ball to Williams who crashed over in the corner for the try. Unfortunately there was no conversion from Jamie Howells, the ball bouncing the wrong way on the bar.

Pontypridd hit back, launching attack after attack at the Vale line, but some great tackles from Will Tuckwell, Morgan Veness and Tristan Thomas, and some lovely clearance kicks from Tom Ap John, stemmed the tide.

Aggressive counter rucking from the Vale wing forwards Lewys Williams and Iestyn Galton helped the Vale regain the upper hand, and good work at the base of the ruck from scrum half Will O'Connor allowed the Vale to bring their back line into the game,.

Darting runs from Griff Naylor and the powerful runs of Dan Stancombe took the game back into the Ponty half.

The Vale's second try was an absolute beauty. A lovely break from inside his own half saw Jamie Howells dance through the Ponty midfield. He passed to winger Jake Thomas who raced down the right of the field, weaving in and out of the Ponty defence only to be held up by a desperate tackle five metres from the opposition try line.

He popped the ball to Iestyn Galton who swiftly passed to Dan Stancombe, who turned and passed to Griff Naylor, running a lovely line that cut through the final defenders, to score in the left hand corner.

Howells added the extra points, the ball soaring between the posts, making the halftime score Vale 12, Pontypridd 0.

The second half saw the Vale under the cosh for large periods, Pontypridd in general having the better of the game.

The Vale's defence was superb, however, as was their scrum, who continually drove back the bigger Ponty pack, with Evan Lloyd and Jarred Williams working hard in the second row.

Both wingers had a good game, Rhys Gentiles tearing down his wing on a number of occasions before being injured, while his replacement Ed Thomas did well, tackling hard.

As the game drew on, Pontypridd's never-say-die attitude paid off and they crossed the line by the posts. Luckily for the Vale, the rushed conversion kick was missed.

The final few minutes of the game saw the Vales defence tested again and again as Ponty attacked, but the final score stayed Vale 12, Pontypridd 5.

The Vale's next game is home at Canton RFC against unbeaten Pembrokeshire schools; follow us on Twitter @ValeSchoolsU15, for kick-off time.

As always our thanks to our sponsors, Apricot Online learning, and to the coaches and parents. MV

HISTORY BECKONS... as Barry Town United prepare for League Cup final

SATURDAY marks a historic day for Barry Town United.

by GARETH JAMIESON

Having thrown off the shackles of the Stuart Lovering era, the club's return to the glory days of 20 years ago takes another step as they face off against The New Saints in the Nathaniel MG Cup final in Cardiff.

Gavin Chesterfield's men last played TNS last February in the fourth round of the Welsh Cup, giving a good account of themselves before falling 5-2 at a rain-soaked Jenner Park, and will be looking for revenge on Craig Harrison's team in the final.

Not that it will be easy; TNS recently broke Ajax's record for consecutive wins, and were only denied a 28th straight win after a late equaliser earned Newtown a 3-3 draw.

They will be going into the game full of confidence, and with the strong belief the cup final is theirs to lose.

However, Barry Town United will be no slouches, and have shown on the road to this final a will to win and a determination that will stand them in good stead come 5.15pm on Saturday.

Football loves an underdog, and Barry are most certainly that, but they would be well advised to look close to home to see how the underdog can upset the odds on the day.

Having upset Cardiff City in the 1994 Welsh Cup final, winning 2-1, two years later Barry Town found themselves in the Welsh Cup final yet again; however, this time the tables were turned and Barry were the team to beat – the opposition on that day? Llansantffraid, a team from a small village who, in just a few years, would become the all-conquering TNS.

That day at the old national stadium, Barry were the team in the ascendancy, favourites to lift the trophy having already cantered their way to the Welsh Premier League title, but Llansantffraid had other ideas, and held them to a 3-3 draw before keeping their nerve in the penalty shootout to complete a historic win for the club.

It would be ironic were the roles to be reversed on Saturday, the dominant force toppled by the minnows, but it can't be discounted so easily; TNS will be the favourites on paper, but as the cliché goes, games are played on grass not paper, and that means Barry Town United have every chance of lifting the trophy.

Whatever the result, the town will be proud of the achievements of this group of players, and is yet more evidence that under the leadership of Gavin Chesterfield, this team is inching ever closer to returning to the glory days of years gone by – come on Barry!

Barry RFC just fall short against their local rivals

BARRY RFC travelled to Pontyclun for a rearranged league fixture last Saturday with a side decimated by injury and unavailability but still hopeful of getting the season back on track after last week's defeat.

As it turned out despite a better performance they were unable to secure the win and went down by 21 points to 17, to at least earn a losing bonus point.

Barry started the game trying to keep the ball in hand but the slippery conditions were causing problems and several promising moves came to nothing.

Early pressure from the home scrum was a problem as Barry struggled to settle down. However, they were unlucky when breaks from Evans and Perry were halted just short.

Pontyclun took the lead from a penalty but it was Barry who were doing most of the attacking and looked the more likely to score.

The scores were brought level with a penalty from Barross and they took the lead soon after, following a forward drive being halted illegally and the referee, who throughout remained in control, awarding a penalty try which Barross converted to give them a seven point lead.

From the restart Pontyclun took play into the Barry 22 and when Barry transgressed at a lineout, they reduced the deficit with a penalty.

Barry were to create one more chance before the break, when Perry put White through only for the centre to lose the ball.

The remaining minutes saw them having to defend as errors began to creep into their game but they survived.

The second half started badly for Barry as they were turned over from the kick off and conceded a penalty which, although missed, saw Pontyclun appear to grow in confidence and lay siege to the Barry line.

A searing break from the home scrum half was halted by an intentional knock on. A yellow card followed to add to Barry's problems, with the same player converting to close the gap to just one point.

Barry seemed to lose their composure for a while as the home team took control of the game and only some resolute defence saved then from conceding further scores.

They held out for a time but the pressure finally told as the heavier home forwards finally drove for the line to cross for a converted try.

There was more of the same to come as Barry put themselves under unecessary pressure with a series of aimless kicks which did nothing but gift the home side the chance to attack, which they eagerly grasped.

They were soon camped back in the Barry 22, where the referee saw the need for second yellow card for Barry.

From a five metre scrum, the seven Barry forwards were unable to hold the home team, who crossed for a further unconverted try, with the conversion hitting the upright, but Pontyclun were now ahead by 21 points to 10.

From the restart, despite having to defend for a long period, Barry finally got a foothold in home territory and put immediate pressure on their defence, forcing a series of penalties which finally led to a second penalty try and a yellow card.

With only four points in it, Barry kept up the pressure and were immediately back in the home 22, taking on the seven-man pack to force penalties.

Opting for scrums, Barry looked odds on to secure what would have been the match-winning score – only for some loose comment to the referee seeing the penalty award reversed, and the last chance had gone.

This was probably a game Barry had the chance to win, but at the moment the team appears to lack the cutting edge that was there prior to the Christmas break

This week Barry travel to meet St Peters, who lie second in the table, for a 2.30pm kick off.

The lottery numbers for last week were 09, 22, 23 and 24, and surprisingly there were no winners; this week's prize will be £3,465.

Ten out of ten for the Dinas Powys Ladies

OVER halfway through the season, and Dinas Powys ladies are now looking like a complete unit.

Coming out the blocks quickly in this game against AFC Porth, Laura Murray, Laura Lewis and Rachel Beare were all very close to giving the visitors the lead within five minutes.

The prolific Dinas striker Murray did, however, make amends and showed composure to turn her marker and slotted home from 15 yards.

She doubled the lead moments later and then, Laura Lewis, having rushed back from a weekend break, hit a hat-trick within 20 minutes, showing she can score as well as assist.

Nao was seeing a lot of the ball and managed to break into the box to score the sixth. Skipper Leanne Pattermore added the seventh from the spot following a handball in the box.

Dinas were in full control and now Hayley Imperato, in her second spell with the club, thought she would get in on the act, adding the eighth showing hard work and a serious diet is paying off.

Gemma Crowley cutting across her defender slotted home from close range to give the visitors a comfortable 9-0 lead at the break.

Now a lot of things could have happened in the second half and Porth could have been guilty of throwing the towel in, but the young black dragons put in a very promising shift as they regrouped during the break and came out in the second half with a point to prove.

The home side played a high line which caught the Villagers out time and time again. Beare and Page managed to find the space and linked up the play.

The second half wore on as Dinas stayed tight and organised, ensuring another clean sheet. As the clock ran down, Murray managed to grab her hat-trick coolly firing home.

Player of the match was awarded to Laura Lewis, for a very well-taken hat-trick and plenty of assists.

A big thank you to all players and officials from both clubs for the minute's silence following the sad passing of Mark Watkins – our thoughts go out to Irene and family.
